DISORDERS SPREAD IN PALESTINE DESPITE BRITISH EFFORTS TO QUELL RIOTS; BEDOUINS BURN CROPS

Bobby Jones Defends Amateur Title Today

150 GOLFERS OPEN BATTLE TO BREAK ATLANTAN'S RULE

Grantland Rice Describes Tournament as Most Thrilling and Picturesque in History.

JONES IS FAVORED TO BREAK RECORD

Tolley, Sweetser and Von Elm Only Hopes of Stopping Bobby in Try for Fifth Victory.

BY GRANTLAND RICE.

Del Monte, Cal., September 1.—Tonight at Del Monte there are something like 150 of the world's greatest amateur golfers who are listening to the surf of the Pacific beat upon the Monterey peninsula with a haunting echo on impending trouble. Nearly every man in this field is good enough, at his best, to qualify, yet only 32 can survive. And they all know that to survive they must keep away from the Pacific ocean that keeps its turbulent, whitecapped guard upon eight holes. Stout Cortez, silent upon his peak in Darien, may have gotten a great thrill out of the Pacific, but there are 150 golfers here who merely look on it as the biggest water hazard they have ever seen, from whose grip there is no recovery. The Pacific will crowd many a hopeful from this championship before Tuesday night for it is too large a target to miss with eight chances to find a watery grave.

Crowds Weary Jones.

Del Monte is now all set for the most spectacular show that amateur golf has ever known. There has never been a championship before arranged in such magnificent scenic settings, under such perfect weather conditions with a better field fighting for the crown that Bobby Jones has won in four of the last five years.

Jones was a tired and weary golfer Saturday night as every shot he has played has not been practice but an exhibition before charging and stampeding galleries of 2,000 and 3,000 spectators. So he rested today for his march against a new American record of five amateur titles where he and Jerry Travers are now tied at four. As Jones has won 24 out of his 25 matches in United States amateur championships, it is a matter once more of Jones against the field and I believe he is playing finer golf today than he ever played in his life. But golf is still a gambling game and no one can foretell tomorrow.

I just had a brief talk with Jess Sweetser and Cyril Tolley, two of the best match play golfers in this championship, two who are quite capable of giving even Jones a lot of trouble, and both seem to be well satisfied with the way they are hitting the ball. Both should qualify and if they do they will be worth watching over this take-a-chance test where faint heart never won fair par. I also had a talk with George Voight, who is playing better golf than he has shown this year and he also is ready to get up and go. Pebble Beach, calling for rare accuracy, will suit his game.

How many are there who have a chance against Jones in this field?

In the list I think you must include Von Elm, Sweetser, Tolley, McHugh, Don Moe, Willing, Finlay and

Colorful Parade Will Be Feature Of Workers' Day

Business To Close Up Shop; Elaborate Entertainment Program at Grant Park Scheduled.

The holiday spirit will prevail in Atlanta today as the local units of organized labor take charge to stage a great demonstration in recognition of the day set aside to honor the laboring man.

The unusually complete program which has been arranged for this Labor Day will include a big parade through the downtown section at 10:30 o'clock in the morning and a program of athletic events at Grant park during the afternoon. A baseball game will feature the afternoon's athletic program and dance at the Grant park pavilion and a display of fireworks at 8 o'clock will conclude the day's official activities.

As has been the custom in former years, banks, almost all business houses, the state capitol, the county courthouse and the city hall will close during part or all of the day, in order that their employes may enjoy the holiday. City council, however, will hold a regular meeting this afternoon.

All arrangements for the parade and the Grant park program have been made by the Atlanta Federation of Trades, working with a number of subcommittees delegated to the arrangements of the several features.

To Form On Central.

The parade, which will be under the direction of William Strauss as marshal, will form on the west side of Central avenue, with the six divisions lining up in reverse order, but all facing Garnett street. In order that those participating in the parade may view all the other divisions, the first division will start from its place in the rear, marching toward Garnett street, and each division dropping into place successively behind it.

Marching west on Garnett street to Whitehall, the column will turn northward, traveling the business district through Peachtree street as far as Baker street, then turning toward Spring street, the point of disbandment.

It was announced Sunday afternoon that Willard Davis, said to be the youngest World War veteran in the United States, would march in the parade today with the D. A. V. drum corps. Davis, now 27 years old, served through the war and was mustered out before he was of regular age for enlistment. He now lives here.

Parade Formation.

First Division — Detachment of mounted police; aviation band; Marshal William Strauss and his aides, J. Sid Tiller and C. T. Joiner; officers and past presidents of the Atlanta Federation of Trades; mayor and general council of Atlanta; Fulton county commissioners; Atlanta Federation of Trades float; Atlanta fire fighters; city school teachers, and Fulton county school teachers.

Second Division—Georgia Power Company band; Division Marshal John F. Scott; street and electric railway employes; ladies auxiliary of the electrical workers; local unions Nos. 84 and 613, Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; ladies' auxiliary of railway carmen; locals Nos. 45 and 354, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen; theatrical and stage employes; Boiler Makers No. 2.

BLAZING INFERNO TAKES NINE LIVES

Ten Other Persons Are Badly Injured When Apartment Building in Winnipeg Burns.

Winnipeg, Manitoba, September 1.—(United News.)—Nine persons were killed and ten others were injured today when fire swept through Midway Court, a three-story apartment building.

The flames broke out suddenly before daybreak and gained such headway before firemen arrived that most of those killed were burned to death in a blazing inferno that engulfed them so rapidly they had no chance to escape.

The dead are: Alfred Applebee, his daughter, Irene, 11; Mrs. Elizabeth Gaunt, Ralph Weighton, 62; Mrs. Madge Edwards, 34; Marjorie Edwards, 14; Gordon Edwards, 9, and two unidentified persons.

The 70 occupants of the apartment house were sleeping peacefully when the blaze first was discovered at 2:30 a. m. Three alarms were turned in in quick succession, but the blaze had progressed so far when firemen arrived that they were unable to check it.

Aided by the staff of the Winnipeg Free-Press, across an alley from the burning structure, the firemen turned all their efforts toward rescuing those on the upper floors, who were cut off by flames belching up the stairways and fire escapes. Several of the occupants leaped from windows.

Newspapermen broke through windows, rescued a dozen of the tenants and then assisted in fighting the blaze with three lines of hose from the Free-Press building.

The whole building was ablaze when firemen arrived. They donned gas masks to enter the house and at the risk of their lives took out bodily more than a score of occupants overcome by smoke.

LUKE LEA REFUSES U. S. SENATE SEAT

Can Be of More Service to State in Ranks of Private Citizens, Publisher Says.

Nashville, Tenn., September 1.—(AP)—Colonel Luke Lea tonight declined an appointment as United States senator from Tennessee to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Lawrence D. Tyson, of Knoxville.

In a letter to Governor Henry H. Horton, Colonel Lea said that "my interest and activity in public affairs have not been prompted by any desire for office," and added: "I believe I can be of more service to Tennessee, working in the ranks as a private citizen, in the great task that lies before the forward-looking men and women of our state than by holding any office, even as exalted as that of United States senator."

The letter concluded by saying that "with these convictions I must necessarily decline with gratitude the appointment to the high office of United States senator that you have so graciously given me."

The appointment of Colonel Lea to serve until the regular election in November of 1930 was made last night by Governor Horton.

PARENTS OF DOOMED SLAYER TO PLEAD GOVERNOR'S MERCY

Macon, Ga., September 1.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Simpson, of Cleveland, Tenn., parents of Homer Simpson, under sentence to die in the electric chair for the murder of a south Georgia man, will go before Governor L. G. Hardman to plead for their son's life Thursday morning.

They held services today at the jail with a party of 39 people from Cleveland who journeyed here for the purpose.

2,000 LOCAL JEWS MEET TO PROTEST HOLY LAND RIOTS

British Called Upon To Fulfill Protectorate of Palestine; Resolution of Sympathy Adopted.

Atlanta Jewry massed Sunday to pray and sympathize with its ravaged brethren in the Holy Land and to call upon the British government to fulfill its protectorate of Palestine.

Two thousand persons attended the mass meeting, called by a local Zionist committee, at the Jewish Woman's Club, Washington and Clark streets, and several hundred were forced to stand outside, unable to gain entrance. A resolution of sympathy was adopted unanimously and Great Britain was called upon to do all in its power to end the massacres of Jews by Arabs and to maintain peace in and about Jerusalem.

Unsolicited contributions, headed by $100 from the Jewish Progressive Club, totaled almost $1,000, though it was announced that the meeting was not called for the purpose of raising funds. The donations will be turned over to the national Zionist committee for use in assisting persons stricken by the Arab attacks.

In conjunction with the meeting a memorial service was conducted by Cantor Aaron Lipitz for Aaron David Epstein, brother of Rabbi Harry H. Epstein, of Atlanta, who was killed in a Moslem attack on the Rabbinical college at Hebron last Sunday, and for other victims of Arab atrocities.

Five Speakers Heard.

The meeting Sunday afternoon was conducted by Joseph Golstein, appointed chairman by the Atlanta Zionist committee. The speakers included Rabbi Tobias Geffen, Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution; Julian Boehm, Joel Dorfan and Mr. Golstein.

Mr. Boehm and Mr. Golstein reviewed the history of the Jews' effort to re-establish a national home in Palestine and cited the long series of outbreaks on the part of the Arabs which deterred their national government construction. Both assured those in attendance that the British government would carry out its pledge to maintain peace.

Rabbi Geffen and Mr. Dorfan spoke in Yiddish, their words being a general expression of sympathy for those who are oppressed as a result of the Moslem outrages.

Noted Sporadic Outbreaks.

Mr. Howell, who several months ago made a tour of Egypt and the Holy Land, said that during his stay in Palestine he noted sporadic outbreaks which indicated that those living there were "sitting on top of a volcano."

"Though there has been great damage done and many lives taken I have no doubt but that the British government will carry out its pledge to the Jews of the world to maintain peace," Mr. Howell said. "England cannot afford to let a holy war get started. She has too much at stake in North Africa and in Asia, for a holy war might mean the loss of India. I am certain that she will use her armed forces to end these outrages, once and for all. She has made her pledge and I feel certain she will keep it."

Rabbi Epstein broke his seven-day period of mourning for his brother to address the gathering. He spoke only a few minutes, his words being a message of sympathy for those who, like himself, were sent into mourning as a result of the latest Arab attacks.

Resolutions Adopted.

The following resolutions, prepared by a committee headed by Charles W. Bergman, was unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, this public meeting in body assembled at Atlanta, Ga., this, the first day of September, 1929, do deeply lament the ruthless slaughter of the Jews in Palestine and the existence of the continuous Arabic atrocities, express its indignation and sorrow of the unprovoked murder of innocent Jewish lives and wanton destruction of Jewish homes, schools and hospitals by treacherous Arab hordes.

"Whereas, the Jewish people, having placed their implicit faith in the Balfour declaration as proclaimed by the British government, have peacefully engaged in the upbuilding of Palestine, having rid the Holy Land of pestilence and disease by building health centers and hospitals, which minister to the sick of Moslem, Christian and Jew alike; converted desolate waste lands into modern agricultural colonies, and having established the Hebrew university in Jerusalem and other similar institutions; and whereas the Jews have undertaken large industrial tasks and have exerted their best efforts in order to make the Holy Land the pride of all civilization, does express its solemn protest against the present situation in Palestine and does hereby draft the following resolutions:

"Be it resolved that we deeply sympathize with those unfortunates who sustained the loss of loved ones in the outrageous massacres in Erets Yisroel.

"Be it resolved, that we deeply sympathize with Rabbi Harry H. Epstein in the loss of his brother, Aaron David Epstein, who was killed in the

ARMY ACE SAVES SELF BY LEAPING AS WINGS BUCKLE

Doolittle, Stunting for Cleveland Exposition, Lands Uunhurt as 35,000 Gasp at Feat.

Cleveland, Ohio, September 1.—(AP). Lieutenant Jimmy Doolittle, famous army racer and stunt pilot, joined the Caterpillar Club today when a wing of his army pursuit plane crumpled in the air.

A little later he nonchalantly climbed into another plane and thrilled crowds at the national air races here with stunts similar to those he was practicing when the accident occurred, causing him to use his parachute and let his first mount go spinning to the ground, a tangled mass of wreckage.

The plane fell into a field, 20 feet across a road from a farm house near Olmstead Falls, Doolittle landed with the parachute a quarter of a mile away. A scratch on his right hand was his only injury.

Thea Rasche Wins Race.

Errett Williams, of Colorado Springs, in an Eagle Rock Bullet, won the 60-mile closed course speed race for the Aviation Town and Country Club trophy, with an average speed of 133.75 miles an hour. The race was open to cabin type planes in the 800 or less cubic inch class.

The handicap Australian pursuit race for women went to Thea Rasche the German aviatrix, of Lowell, Mass., whose net time was 36 minutes, 6 seconds for the 75-mile course, an average speed of 99.72 miles per hour.

Louise Thaden, the Pittsburgh flyer, who won the women's trans-continental derby last Monday, finished second by handicap, but her average speed was 136.83, the fastest in the race.

The planes were handicapped to their horsepower. Mrs. Keith Miller, of Buffalo, was third.

Brown Sets Record.

R. G. Lockwood, Long Island, N. Y., in a Fairchild, finished first in the 80-mile Detroit News transport and efficiency contest. His average speed was 127.37 miles an hour. George Haldeman, New Castle, Del., was second in a Bellanca at 119.97 miles an hour. Other factors besides speed must be competed for before the winner is determined.

Fuel tanks nearly empty and motor burned out and sputtering, Henry J. Brown, veteran Cleveland-New York air mail pilot, pushed his black and silver Lockheed mail wing monoplane across the finish line at the national air races today at 5:19 p. m., 13 hours and 18 minutes out of Los Angeles on a non-stop flight for $10,000.

So far the money is his. Lee Schoenhair, of Los Angeles, having made the flight in 13 hours 51 minutes and 10 seconds, and Lieutenant Colonel Roscoe Turner having been disqualified by failing to arrive before 6 o'clock in the evening. Two more fliers, however, are waiting to better the time. They are: Art Gobel, Honolulu-Pacific flier, and John Wood, of Wausau, Wis.

The air race crowds cheered Brown when he landed. As he alighted from the plane his wife embraced and kissed him. When asked to talk to the crowd over the amplifier he was too excited to form his sentences.

He said he followed the great circle route. His average speed was 156.4 miles an hour as compared with Schoenhair's speed of 149.63 miles an hour.

Reid's Record Stands.

A new world's record for consecutive outside loops was set by Eric Wood, Laird Aircraft test pilot, who performed 14 straight loops. The previous records of seven was made last week by Bert Mackie.

Race officials announced today that the widow of Pilot Thomas G. Reid, of Downey, Cal., killed early Saturday after he had established a new solo endurance flight record, would

POLICE MYSTIFIED AS BULLET VICTIM REFUSES TO TALK

Police Sunday night were attempting to determine the circumstances surrounding the shooting of Carl Bourn, of 649 Briton street, who suffered a badly shattered left leg bone early Sunday morning when he was shot by an unidentified assailant near the intersection of English and Bankhead avenues.

According to reports made by Patrolman W. D. Nash, Bourn was brought to Grady hospital shortly after 5 o'clock Sunday morning by O. R. Camp, of 1214 North avenue, who, with Ed Perkins, of 735 Bankhead avenue, had found Bourn lying wounded a short time before.

Perkins, who is a nightwatchman at a plant near the scene of the shooting, said he heard one shot and ran from his post to find Bourn lying in the street.

At the hospital Bourn was taciturn, refusing to discuss the matter in detail. He told Patrolman Nash that a man name Pierce shot him, but refused to elaborate on this statement.

Zeppelin Departs For Home Hangar; Eckener Remains

COUNCIL MEMBERS WILL LABOR TODAY

Holiday To Be Just Monday for City Fathers; Routine Matters To Be Considered.

Labor Day for city council members promises to be that literally, rather than in the festive sense, for while the majority of the populace is enjoying holiday diversions, city council will be in regular session, disposing of a mass of routine matters.

The only foreseen matters of general interest will be the request of Councilman James L. Wells, chairman of the traffic committee, for a revision and standardization of city speed laws, and a resolution to be offered by Councilman Joseph E. Berman, seeking reduction of bus fares for school children.

Mr. Wells, in seeking standardization and definition, will point out that present laws set 20 miles an hour as the limit for the congested area, 25 miles within the fire limits and 30 miles elsewhere in the city. His point will be that few drivers know what may be regarded as the "congested" area and few know the fire limits. To remedy this difficulty he will ask a thorough study of the situation with a view to clarifying the question.

Mr. Berman's resolution will ask that bus fares for school children be cut from 10 to 5 cents and that transfer agreements be made between trolleys and buses in order to save parents of school children heavy transportation expenses. He also will ask the extension of street car tracks to the Girls' High school building.

Among several routine matters to be presented by the police committee will be the request that Chief James L. Beavers be allowed leave so he may attend the international meeting of police chiefs, to be held November 23 to 27 in Paris, France.

The streets committee will recommend the awarding to the MacDougald Construction Company of a $6,422.03 contract for paving on English avenue and Tilson drive. This committee also will ask the county to pave Tenth street, from Hemphill avenue to Williams street, and Nolam street, from Hill street to Chosewood park, and to grade Gault street, from McDonough boulevard to Chosewood park.

BOMB EXPLOSION MYSTIFIES BERLIN

Blast in Cellar of Reichstag Building Shatters Windows, But Injures None.

Berlin, September 1.—(AP)—A mysterious bomb explosion in the cellar of the Reichstag building during Saturday night shattered several windows in the building. Parts of a clock-work fuse were found by police on the floor. No one was injured.

How the bomb got into the cellar of the building is a problem that today engages the entire Berlin police department and several high government officials. No one has access to the building except reich officials.

The caretaker on duty at the time said he was in the vicinity of one of the cellars while his assistant was making the usual rounds of inspection and was startled to hear a muffled sound. Investigating he found several windows on the ground floor of the right wing of the building shattered and the iron ornamental trappings broken and twisted. He summoned the police and fire departments immediately. Inspection revealed the parts of the fuse lying about the floor.

Since May there have been seven bomb explosions on government premises in Schleswig-Holstein and Oldenburg, where agricultural discontent has long been rife. Last Friday a clock-work bomb was placed on the doorstep of Vice President Victor Grimpe of the province of Schleswig but a faulty fuse prevented explosion.

High rewards have been offered for evidence leading to the arrest of the guilty.

The police attached some importance to the discovery on a lamppost near the reichstag of a label with the fascist emblem and the words, "Greater Germany Awake!"

Messages Indicate Ship Is Making Record Speed; Violates Precedent By Sailing in Morning.

Philadelphia, September 1.—(AP)—A message from the Graf Zeppelin, picked up by the radio operator of the Reading railway at 11:15 (D. S. T.) gave the position of the big dirigible as 38.50 degrees north, 50.10 west. This was estimated as 1,440 miles east of Lakehurst.

HAS HELPING WIND, KIMBALL SAYS.

New York, September 1.—(AP)—Dr. James H. Kimball, weather bureau meteorologist, said tonight that the dirigible Graf Zeppelin would have favorable winds for a large part of its trans-Atlantic flight to Germany.

The report of the dirigible to the navy department showing the ship was on a slightly southerly course indicated that it had passed behind a storm that yesterday was headed in a northeasterly direction for the vicinity of Sable Island, Dr. Kimball said.

He added that weather reports indicated that the dirigible was clear of any bad weather for the crossing, excepting possibly some local disturbances.

BIG SHIP SAILS EARLY SUNDAY.

Lakehurst, N. J., September 1.—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin sailed back to Germany today and Dr. Hugo Eckener, the man who piloted it around the world, stood quietly on the ground and watched it go.

It was a curious parting, this first separation of the man and the machine which have shared so many adventures, for to those who watched it seemed that of the two it was the machine which showed the greater reluctance.

Having made up his mind to stay on in America for a few days and send his dirigible back under command of Captain Ernst Lehmann, Dr. Eckener stood in the morning sun by the hangar door and saw the ship depart at 7:18 eastern standard time, with scarcely any show of emotion.

The great ship, on the other hand, seemed for several minutes to be fighting the will of the navigators directing it into the element in which it was accustomed to sail only under the guidance of Dr. Eckener.

When the command "up ship" was given, the ground crew heaved and the bow rose easily. But the tail dragged close to the ground and even when pulled upward by the mounting prow hung at a sharp angle below the dirigible's forward section.

Then the engines roared and the sluggish ship at last seemed to remember the reputation it had to uphold and straightened out, melting then into the east toward the ocean it was to cross for the fifth time in less than a year.

Dr. Eckener drew a white handkerchief from his pocket, waved once, and without a glance over his shoulder marched back into the hangar.

The Graf's commander prepared at once to leave for Cleveland tonight so that he might attend the air races in Cleveland. From there he will go to Akron, Ohio, for business conferences with officials of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Company, which holds the American rights to the Zeppelin patents.

Before leaving Captain Lehmann, a diminutive sailor of the skies who led the first dirigible raid against London in the war and who has commanded half a dozen airships smaller than the Graf, said he expected to start due east and then, if weather

CLINCH COUNTY IN RECEIVERSHIP

Fight Between Old and New Commissioners Causes Citizens To Place Georgia County in Courts

Alma, Ga., September 1.—(AP)—Clinch county was in the hands of receivers today after proceedings had been instituted by citizens and taxpayers to bring about efficient administration of the county affairs. Judge D. A. R. Crum, of the Cordele circuit, appointed C. A. Smith, of Homerville; C. Lee, of Dupont, and Norman Allen, of Fargo, as receivers.

Hearings upon the fight between the old and new boards of commissioners are scheduled before Judge Smith at Nashville next week with further hearing before Judge Crum set for September 17 at Cordele.

NORTHERN GALILEE JEWISH COLONIES SUFFER ATTACKS

Twenty-Two Persons Reported Wounded as Nomads of Desert Are Driven Away.

JUDEA, SAMARIA REPORTED QUIET

Situation at Safed Described as Still Serious With Epidemic Threatening Populace.

Jerusalem, September 1.—(United News.)—Disorders and severe fighting continued in Palestine today as British and French troops further strengthened border forces to prevent the entrance of Arab tribes from Syria and Trans-Jordania.

The Jewish-American colony at Migdal was attacked by Arabs last night. The inhabitants barricaded themselves in a large American hotel. The house of Isadore Green, an American citizen, was looted in the attack.

The American consul-general here has insisted that additional troops be sent to the Jewish-American settlements to protect lives and property.

Marauders, who have taken advantage of the present situation to loot, were shot between Haifa and Jenin, an official announcement said. The Jewish colony of Yessodahamala, in northern Galilee, was looted and the colonies of Mishmarhayarden and Mahanayim were ordered evacuated.

The American Hadassah medical organization dispatched a medical commission to Safed, where more than a score were killed in fighting, and other attacked colonies. Many additional houses are being burned at Safed in spite of the presence of armed forces.

Meanwhile, highest authorities said small numbers of armed Bedouin tribesmen continued to cross the Palestine border. They have attacked several towns and set fire to crops.

The threat of invasion by the fierce Bedouin and Druse tribesmen is still accute, according to authoritative sources here, although the British troops are steadily reinforcing the frontier. One high authority told the United News that small numbers of Arabs filtering in from Syria are being arrested by the Trans-Jordania frontier force.

Syria, Damuscus Aroused.

Two Bedouin Emirs also were arrested, which action aroused their tribes and prompted them to attempt to cross the Jordan. Aviators went out to meet them and drove them back.

Advices said, however, that the disorders have spread in the regions of Syria and Damascus, although chiefly in the form of demonstrations. A Palestine Zionist executive here said telegrams from Bagdad caused considerable anxiety over the fate of thousands of Jews in Mesopotamia.

There were ten casualties at Bagdad when police and troops clashed with Arabs, some of whom had started looting after the demonstrations Friday, at which the Palestine situation was protested. Police are patrolling the city and have the situation under control, according to a United News dispatch.

A diplomatic official here said that an international commission probably will be appointed by the League of Nations to investigate the outbreak in Palestine. He said he believed the United States will insist on appointment of American experts to estimate the damage to American property.

Green Attacks Injunctions In Summarizing Progress Labor Has Made in Year

Says Courts Are Exercising Powers Not Legally Theirs; Presses for Five-Day Week.

Washington, September 1.—(AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a Labor Day statement today said organized labor, notwithstanding its "failure to obtain justice from the judges," could look back over the past year "with the greatest of satisfaction."

"The organizing of the unorganized wage earners," he said, "has gone ahead with startling successes. In more than 600 cities and towns aggressive organizing campaigns have been in progress and many thousands of members have been added to the trade unions.

"Furthermore, the wage earners in the south have awakened to the necessity of organization. The organization activities are not confined to a few localities or to a few states, but are widespread below the Mason and Dixon line."

Asserting that "collective bargaining is coming to be more and more adopted as a preventative of labor disputes," President Green said strikes in this country have gradually dwindled in number until the index number of 100 in 1916 was reduced to 17 in 1928.

"At the same time, of the 35,000 local unions in the United States at least 20,000 whose contracts expired received improvements of some kind by agreement with their employes, either in wages, hours or working conditions."

"Government by injunction," he said, "is a problem remaining to be solved. The judges are not only active in their efforts to paralyze the activities of labor but made bold by their successes against wage earners, they have gone into other fields which heretofore have been immune.

"A newspaper was suppressed in Minnesota for criticizing a judge. Two editors of a newspaper in Ohio were fined and sentenced to jail for taking exceptions to a judge enjoining a sheriff from suppressing gambling, which the laws prohibited, at a race track. This has brought bitter criticisms from those who in the past have been satisfied as long as only labor was enjoined. Now they are beginning to learn how persistent the judges can be in extending powers not granted by law."

President Green listed among the major accomplishments of organized labor the increasing support for the five-day week, asserting that more than 1,200,000 members of trade unions now are working under the five-day week plan, and the passage of a law by congress providing that convict-made products shipped into a state should be governed by the laws of that state. This law, he said, enabled the states to prohibit the importation within their borders of convict-made goods from other states. He contended this competition had formed one of the greatest problems the federation has had to face since its organization.

Local Child Believed Victim Of Malta Fever, Dreaded Ill

NO KNOWN CURE FOR DISEASE COMMON IN CRIMEA

What has been tentatively diagnosed as a case of Malta fever, a rare and dreaded disease, is being treated at Grady hospital, according to attending doctors.

Cecil Ayers, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Ayers, of Martell village, is the patient who, doctors fear, is afflicted with this disease for which no definite cure is known.

The disease, which is rather common in Crimea, and has been noted several times in eastern states, never before has been found in Atlanta, according to Dr. J. P. Kennedy, city health officer.

The malady arises most commonly from drinking goat's milk but some doctors are of the opinion that it sometimes may be contracted from drinking cow's milk or from other animal sources. It has a daily cycle of rising and falling temperatures. At about 9 in the morning the patient is practically normal in temperature. There then will be a gradual rise until about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when it will be at about 100 degrees. From then until about 1 o'clock the thermometer will show a steady rise to about 106 degrees. The receding process then starts until normalcy is reached some six to eight hours later. The disease is said to be not frequently fatal but leaves undesirable after effects, such as deformity and stiffened joints.

The fever first became well known to medical science during the Crimean war in 1863 and since that time attempts to find a certain cure for it have failed.

A. C. L. SCHEDULES TO FLORIDA SPEEDED

The growing importance of the southeast in general and Atlanta in particular is shown in the winter service announcements of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad, released Sunday. In order to provide better facilities for this section, which plays a bigger part each year in the nation's tourist and commercial traffic, the Coast Line has added several new trains to its schedules and has quickened the service on others.

The line will run one new train through Atlanta from Chicago to Florida. The Floridan will be placed in service January 1, 1930, and will add its name to the notable list of specials which run through here from the north and west to Florida. Those already in service are The Southland, The Dixie Limited, The Seminole, The Flamingo, The Dixie Flyer and the St. Louis-Jacksonville express.

The new Floridan will be another de luxe, Pullman, observation, club and dining car train, operating from Chicago and St. Louis. The Southland continues the fastest train from Atlanta, Cincinnati and other western points to the west coast of Florida, its schedule having been cut by more than an hour from here to Tampa.

The Dixie Limited continues on its present schedule as a fast all-year-around train serving between St. Louis and Chicago and both the east and west coasts of Florida. The Seminole continues on a similar service basis with greatly improved equipment, including full observation car service. The service of the Flamingo, an old favorite, has been augmented by the addition of sleeping cars from several wid-western points to Miami. The Dixie Flyer remains on the same schedule with improved equipment, including lounge and compartment cars. The St. Louis-Jacksonville express now is in service with through sleeping car accommodations.

FIGHTING IS RENEWED ON CHINA-RUSS BORDER

Mukden, Manchuria, September 1.—(AP)—German Consul Hansel, of Harbin, and four American newspapermen were said in an official communique issued tonight to have witnessed bombardment of Chinese lines by Russian artillery and to have seen a Russian armored train enter Chinese territory.

The party had arrived at Manchuli, near the western frontier of Manchuria, on Friday.

(This was the first report of border violence in almost a week. Earlier Chinese sources on several occasions had charged the Russians with firing across the border and with actual invasion of Chinese soil.)

CHINA WILL REFUSE TO REPLACE OFFICIAL.

Shanghai, China, September 1.—(AP) Foreign Minister C. T. Wang declared today that China would not consent to replace the present chairman of the board of directors of the Chinese Eastern railway. Such action was made a condition by the soviet government on Friday to a joint declaration for settlement of Manchurian questions.

Earlier in the negotiations Russia had insisted that the former Russian general manager of the railway be restored to the position from which the Chinese ousted him early in July as a preliminary to settlement. The Chinese refused on the ground that he had used his office to further communistic propaganda and had misused funds.

Russia, in what was described as a conciliatory move by Moscow circles, on Friday expressed willingness to consider naming another Russian as general manager if the Chinese would replace the Chinese chairman to whom the soviets attached blame for "violation of the agreement" of 1924 governing the status of the railroad.

The statement of the foreign minister today would seem to leave the negotiations exactly where they were almost two months ago.

Sunday Autoists Careful, Mishaps And Injuries Few

For some undetermined reason Sunday proved to be one of the best Sabbaths of many months from the standpoint of accidents, an examination of the police records shortly before midnight revealing that only two accidents had been reported during the entire day and that no one was reported as dangerously hurt in this pair of mishaps.

This figure contrasts strongly with the usual Sunday toll of a dozen to a score or more of accidents with a proportionately large number of injuries. Last Sunday was said by officers to have been lighter than the average, and on that day there were 12 accidents reported with about six persons injured to varying degrees.

Claud Wilson, negro, of 535 Kennedy street, received a serious head injury when he was knocked from his bicycle at the intersection of Auburn and Piedmont avenues by a city car driven by Patrolman C. D. Holton. According to the reports the boy rode across in front of the car as it was turning.

The other accident was reported early Sunday morning after a car driven by O. M. McCoy, of a Gordon street address, had knocked down a police call box at Spring and Mitchell streets. McCoy was arrested on charges of operating an automobile while intoxicated.

DEKALB POLICE GET 120 GALLONS AND RUM RUNNER

Decatur, Ga., September 1.—(Special.)—Cleverly concealed in a "trap" in a small coupe, 120 gallons of whisky were seized here tonight by DeKalb officers on the Stone Mountain road and Frank Hanner, 23, of 703 Jones avenue, Atlanta, driver, is being held on charges of possessing and transporting liquor.

County Officers E. T. Holcombe, Charley Janes and Horace Goza made the catch. Hanner is being held on $1,500 bond.

LADS QUIT BIKE ENDURANCE RIDE AFTER 279 HOURS

Memphis, Tenn., September 1.—(AP) Memphis bicycle endurance races are over. Peter Donati, 19, and William Ford, 18, stopped today, after pedalling in relays for more than 279 hours. They claim a record.

8 HORSES KILLED BY LIGHTNING BOLT AT PRISON FARM

Milledgeville, Ga., September 1.—(Special.)—Six horses and two colts were killed by one bolt of lightning at the state prison farm Friday. The left eyes were knocked out of three other colts, but they were otherwise uninjured.

The horses had been fed for the night and were eating out of a trough under a tree in the prison farm pasture, when lightning struck the tree and trough. Only one horse escaped injury.

GIL NOT CANDIDATE FOR MEX PRESIDENCY

Executive Declares He Will Remain Aloof From the Election.

Mexico City, September 1.—(AP)—Declaring that he had initiated the era of institutional government proclaimed necessary by General Plutarco Elias Calles in his memorable address to congress last year, President Emilio Portes Gil told congress today at the opening of the regular fall session that he had no intention of endeavoring to prolong his term in office and that the government will remain entirely aloof from the presidential elections November 17.

"I believe I have fulfilled the offer made in my inaugural address to substitute in the government men loyal to men by men loyal to principles," the president said, "thus conforming with the desire expressed by General Calles in his speech here last September when he declared that the era of 'Caudillaje' (one man military rule) should be ended and a government of institutions set up."

He replied to rumors that have been current recently by declaring categorically that he does not wish to remain in office after completing his provisional term next February. "I do not possess the proportions of a 'caudillo' capable of leading the army or the people on a venture so absurd as that which heated imaginations have conceived," he said.

Aloof From Elections.

"Prolongation of my mandate would bring bankruptcy of the law. There is not the slightest reason to suspect that I endeavor to initiate, suggest or lend my support to any movement tending to alter the date of the presidential elections and prolong my mandate, which mandate I hold with the satisfaction of having initiated the institutional step that General Calles announced and in behalf of which all good Mexicans are duty bound to struggle, putting into the purpose all the love and impartiality of which they are capable."

Felipe Canales, acting secretary of the interior, reported on settlement of the church-state controversy, declaring that the Catholic clergy agreed to subject itself to the Mexican laws governing religious activities and that the government believed

In a message which required two hours' reading, congress was given a complete account of the nine months old provisional administration's activities. Among the outstanding achievements were listed suffocation of the revolution which broke out March 3, settlement of the state-church controversy and subsequent termination of the Cristero rebellion, reduction and economy in the army, furtherance of the agrarian policy, expansion in the educational field and preservation of a sound financial program.

Regarding Nicaragua.

In regard to foreign relations, the report referred especially to Nicaragua, setting forth that Mexico had not established diplomatic relations with the present government there because it had not, in Mexico's opinion, re-that in settling the controversy "it complied strictly with its duty."

In the field of foreign relations, Jemaro Estrada, acting secretary, said that Mexico had presented its points of view to the United States government to prevent "exaggerated application" of immigration regulations to Mexicans, and had made opportune observations to Washington as to the proposed tariff increases on importations from Mexico. The United States exports to Mexico last year, he revealed, totaled in value about $115,000,000, while its imports from Mexico amounted to $124,000,000.

The chamber in which the joint meeting of the two houses was held, was packed by listeners and a huge crowd assembled outside as the chief executive gave accounting of his stewardship. Members of the diplomatic corps, military officers, cabinet officials and social and business leaders looked on.

Senora Portes Gil arrived half an hour before her husband and took a seat in a balcony box. The president came from his palace by automobile and, preceded by a troop of cavalry, rode between a double file of troops. Military bands played the national anthem. He greeted his cabinet assembled to meet him on the steps to the chamber and then proceeded to the rostrum to begin his address.

She Won't Cook Can't Stand Smell

"I could not eat or cook because the smell of food sickened me. I took Adlerika and now I eat anything without discomfort."—Mrs. John R. Gall.

The simple mixture of glycerin, buckthorn bark, etc. (known as Adlerika), has a most surprising DOUBLE action. It acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel (most medicines act on lower bowel only) and removes foul matter that poisoned the system for months. It clears GAS and sourness from the stomach and bowels, bringing INSTANT relief from stomach trouble. And in addition, Adlerika removes metabolic poisons which cause neuritis and rheumatism.

Dr. J. Weaver: "In my 50 years' practice, I have found nothing to excel Adlerika."

J. E. Puckett: "After using Adlerika I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated."

It will surprise you the great amount of poisons Adlerika brings out—you would never believe they were in your system. In chronic constipation, GAS, sour stomach and sick headache, just ONE spoonful Adlerika brings wonderful relief. At leading druggists. Send for FREE checkerboard. ADLERIKA, Dept. M-37, St. Paul, Minn.—(adv.)

GERMANY HAS PAID DEBTS PROMPTLY, GILBERT REPORTS

Berlin, September 1.—(AP)—S. Parker Gilbert, agent-general for reparations, announced tonight that Germany made all payments fully and punctually in the fifth and final year of the Dawes plan which ended yesterday. He said that transfers had been made under the plan without disturbing the stability of the German exchange.

The agent-general received from Germany about 2,500,000,000 gold marks, including two payments in completion of the fourth annuity year. Of the total 1,419,000,000 were made in foreign currencies and about 1,034,000,000 by means of reichsmark payments in Germany.

At the end of the year a cash balance of about 237,000,000 marks was in the hands of the agent-general, of which 67,000,000 was in reichsmarks and 170,000,000 in foreign currencies.

Payments to creditors were as follows:

Escape From Fascist Prison

:: SECOND AND LAST CHAPTER OF NITTI ACCOUNT ::

Described by Italian Noble

BY FRANCESCO FAUSTO NITTI.
Written exclusively for The Constitution and The North American Newspaper Alliance.

Paris, September 1.—It was at Lipari that my dream of escape began to take shape when I met two dear friends, Signor Emilio Lussu and Professor Carlo Rosselli.

Signor Lussu is a hero of the war, and as a captain serving in the famous Sassari brigade he was four times decorated for gallantry. After the war he became head of the so-called party of action in Sardinia.

This party represented the strongest and largest democratic opposition to fascism, and Lussu fought fascism uncompromisingly in the press, in the chamber of deputies and in his own private life.

October 31, 1926, during one of the pogroms organized by the fascists against their adversaries, Lussu's house at Cagliari, Sardinia, was attacked by a thousand armed fascists who sought to sack Lussu's home and kill him.

Finds Strong Friends.

Lussu put up a brave defense and one of his assailants was killed. Lussu was arrested, and after a year in prison under remand was tried but adjudged not guilty of manslaughter, the court finding he had acted in self-defense.

Public opinion was entirely favorable to him, but nevertheless Mussolini had him deported to Lipari for five years.

Professor Carlo Rosselli, a leader among the younger element of the socialist reformist party, had organized the flight abroad of Signor Filippo Turati, leader of his party. Rosselli was arrested and sentenced to ten months after a trial which caused a sensation. When he had served his sentence Rosselli was deported to Lipari for five years.

I found in those two friends a will equal to my own to snap the chains which bound us. But this was not easy. Lipari is off the coasts of Calabria, Sicily and Sardinia, and is, as it were, surrounded by Italy.

The supervision of the deportees is of the keenest character. On the island 90 men are assigned to guard 500 deportees. There are, moreover, 200 fascist militiamen under four officers, eighty carabinieri, police, sailors, telegraphists, etc. Furthermore, the local inhabitants are always ready to spy.

The coasts are guarded day and night by three high-speed motor launches armed with machine guns, by a small gunboat, and by various other craft. A wireless station maintains constant contact between our police authorities and the naval authorities at Messina, Palermo, Tratani and Cagliari.

Under Close Guard.

At Lipari the deportees may leave their houses at 7 in the morning, but must be at home at 7 p. m. in winter and 9 in summer. They may walk only in the three or four roads in the interior of the island, and not for more than about three-quarters of a mile. Farther away from the little township a string of twelve posts manned by fascist militia prevents the deportees from straying too far.

Lussu, Rosselli and I were under particularly stringent surveillance. During his short walks Lussu was followed step by step by four policemen. The little house in which he and I lived was under constant guard. Three-quarters of an hour or so after we were supposed to be at home at night patrols visited each house and made certain the deportees were all indoors. A further roll-call was made every morning at 8 o'clock.

We worked a year making everything ready for our escape, down to the smallest detail. Some of our friends in exile abroad had promised their help, and said that they would come and carry us away at night, taking the guards by surprise.

Our first task was to find a place suitable for escaping in a boat. We studied the habits of our jailers. For months we all followed a course which attracted no sort of suspicion, and at the same time we were carrying on our preparations for giving our guards the slip.

Often at night Lussu would go on reconnoitering expeditions, disguised as an old fisherman. Those expeditions gave us valuable information. We fixed upon a place for getting away from the island. To reach it we should have to pass quite close to two armed patrols, but we reckoned on darkness and on lack of suspicion on the part of the fascists. The place was not far from the village. It was a little cove surrounded by rocks rising sheer from the sea.

Crawls Through Lines.

The arrangement was that we meet our friends from abroad at this cove at 9 p. m., July 27, about a month ago. This was the exact hour at which, as on every other evening, we had to be in for evening roll call. If our friends should fail us and the guards surprise us we should certainly be stopped, but we had every faith in our friends and we decided to carry through the attempt.

Rosselli, who lived three-quarters of a mile from the cove, had to reach it after a dangerous creep through a network of alleys. Lussu, who could not come out of the house by the front door, which was watched by the police, dropped a rope from a window overlooking a lane at the back of the house. He was disguised as an old boatman, and he limped along, smoking a big pipe, through several brightly-lit streets where the officers of the police and of the garrison were walking about or sitting at cafes.

I was standing in a tavern until a few minutes before the time for our escape; then, with a cherry "au revoir" to some friendly deportees who naturally knew nothing about my plans, I walked toward my house.

When I had got to a certain point I turned and, to avoid a patrol coming toward me, lay flat on the ground. Then I crawled on all fours to a deep shadow where I remained motionless a few minutes.

From there I reached our rendezvous without further difficulty, and diving fully dressed into the sea I swam to a point where it had been agreed that our friends should pick us up. Eighty forty-five struck from the clock in the village. There was no sign of Lussu or Rosselli, and I was beginning to ask myself what had happened and whether my two friends, less fortunate than myself, had been arrested. All sorts of melancholy thoughts crossed my mind and I was peering through the darkness in the hope of seeing the boat which was to take us away, but all in vain.

Friends on Time.

Nine o'clock struck, and I was becoming more and more anxious about my two friends. I had been in the water nearly twenty minutes, and I was getting chills.

A little later I heard a noise which, considering my state of nerves, struck as terribly loud. It was the beat of a motor engine coming closer, and I was in an agony of doubt whether the boat was the one I was expecting or a police launch.

The dark outline of a boat showed fifty yards away. It was coming slowly toward the spot where I was up to my neck in water. When it was ten yards away a voice which I recognized at once as that of one of my friends who had been exiled abroad whispered the pass word agreed on.

I cannot describe what I felt. There was something marvelous in the punctuality with which our friends had kept the appointment, especially when one considers the smallness of their boat and the hundreds of miles they had had to cover, as well as the difficulties to be overcome in approaching the island without being seen.

As in the days of the war, these men had broken through a blockade and had evaded signal stations, searchlights and every kind of light patrol boat. I swam as quickly as I could toward my friends, who dragged me on board and gave me a hearty welcome.

Meanwhile, what had happened to Lussu and Rosselli? I quickly told my friends all there was to be told. They had stopped their motor to avoid being overheard.

Narrow Escape.

It was an agonized wait. We lay in silence, broken only by an occasional whisper, and we strained our aching eyes to pierce the night in hope of seeing our two friends. We were so absorbed we never noticed that the wind and the current had driven the boat toward shore and into a circle of light.

My friends flung themselves on the oars and pulled desperately in the direction of the sea. We had come so close to land that I was able clearly to see people coming and going in the little square leading to the water's edge, and men in uniform enjoying the evening coolness.

It was at that moment, when we had really begun to despair of ever seeing Lussu and Rosselli, that we heard two quick splashes near the spot where we should all have met. It could only be the missing men. It was then after 9:30, and we had just time to escape. In a quarter of an hour the alarm would have started in pursuit.

The motor throbbed loudly, but now we were indifferent to the noise. Indeed at that moment the noise seemed a cheering one, almost like a word of encouragement from a powerful ally. We quickly closed with our friends, who were swimming, dragged them aboard, and then started off full speed.

After the first few moments of excitement Lussu told us he had come across a patrol in front of a little street down which he had to go. A large lamp was throwing light on the place, and at any moment he might have been recognized. He sat down a few steps away from the patrol, lighted a pipe and waited for the soldiers to move a few yards. Then he walked past them. Rosselli had lost time hidden in a doorway waiting for a squad of police to pass.

Kinsman Blamed.

We kept up our journey at full speed ten hours. Until dawn we had to consider the possibility of having been followed. A quarter of an hour after our departure the alarm must certainly have been given and the wireless station must have warned all the neighboring naval bases of our escape. It was quite possible we might meet at daybreak some torpedo boat steaming to bar our way.

Fortunately we had no such unpleasant meeting. Probably the surprise and confusion on the island were so complete the authorities sent out entirely contradictory reports and instructions. July 28 we reached a foreign land, and a few days later we were in France.

Thirteen days afterward the fascist government issued a brief communication to the Italian press about our escape, being obliged to give the information owing to the full reports about us already published in a large section of the foreign press.

Resorting to the penal practices of other days, when reprisals and taking of hostages were favored, two days after we escaped Rosselli's brother, Nollo, a history student popular among his friends and entirely unconnected with politics, was arrested and immediately deported to Ustica.

Rosselli's wife, an English-born woman (Miss Marion Cave) formerly a teacher at the British institute in Florence, was arrested at Courmayeur, where she was spending a holiday with her two-year-old boy, knowing nothing about her husband's escape.

She was kept a day and a night in prison with criminals, and it was only because she was suffering from her heart that she was taken to a hotel, where she remained under close guard and was forbidden to communicate with anybody.

BEAR ATTACKS HOME IN CANADA, DEVOURS CHILD

Winnipeg, Can., September 1.—(United News.)—A large black bear, hunger-maddened when driven from the woods by forest fires, carried off a 3-year-old daughter of Fred Grorricuk at Lowlands, 110 miles from here, and killed her, reports filtering in from the sparsely settled section said today.

Terrified when the beast battered down the flimsy door of Grorricuk's backwoods horse, two other children fled to neighbors, leaving the 3-year-old child in the room.

The parents were working in the fields some distance away. When they returned with neighbors summoned by the two children, they found the body of their child, partly devoured, near their home.

BILLION-DOLLAR GEORGIA.

Without some unforeseen and destructive state-wide calamity intervening, Georgia promises to round out this year as a billion-dollar state in the volume and value of its productions. Counting its thirty money crops, its cattle, hogs, poultry products, naval stores, lumber, clays and factory-finished wares and goods, that billion-dollar high-water mark should surely be reached. And that would make our annual production equal four-fifths of all the property values of the state as returned for taxation.

As for the latter items, it now appears from the estimates of the wealth actuaries of the nation that only 20 per cent of the wealth of the state is actually on the tax digests of the 161 counties. That is why the outside world gets the impression that Georgia property is not worth much, that our land values reported by the comptroller-general prove that Georgia lands are poor and unproductive and that our taxation, measured by our valuations, is high and burdensome.

For that false and degrading impression the people of Georgia have to thank their demagogic politicians, who continually tell the folks that they are a poor and oppressed people, and while tearfully swearing to relieve their burdens only connive with each other and legislate yet heavier burdens upon the taxpayers.

Georgians are not poor, except in the spirit to tell the demagogues to "go hang." When they enforce that command they will recognize their real prosperity and right to walk with the proudest in the Union.

GRAND JUROR SENTINELS.

The retiring grand jury of Fulton county recommends the formation of a grand jurors' association for the county, to be composed of the foremen of grand juries impaneled by the superior court. Such associations function in the boroughs of Greater New York city and in Baltimore city. The suggestion to form a like body here is timely and suggestive of very desirable results.

Popularly there is a very mistaken estimate of what a grand jury is formed to do. The general idea is that it is called to listen to ex parte witnesses in support of proposed indictments of persons for alleged crimes, and having assented or dissented from the proposals of the solicitor-general its work is finished.

The grand jury is an inherited English institution of vastly more important purposes and duties. It is "the grand inquest of the county." Its prerogative is to inquire into all the public business of the county, the conduct of its officials, the observance or nullification of the moral and peace laws, the fiduciary affairs of the county government in all departments, to supervise the penal and humanitarian provisions of the laws, and to recommend to the courts, the officers and to public opinion the measures of reform and relief it judges will enhance the common welfare.

While the grand jury has no legislative power in itself it can rightfully claim to speak for known public sentiment and point out what ought to be done in the public interest.

A grand jurors' association, as a trustworthy critical body, can render highly valuable services to the people and Fulton county could be profitably advised by it.

WALSH OF MONTANA.

It is news of interest and value to the democratic party that Senator Walsh, of Montana, will offer next year for election to a fourth term. His record in the senate during the past 16 years has been one seldom surpassed for conspicuous abilities, honest zeal in the public service and achievements of immense value to the national welfare.

Had he no larger claims to the gratitude and indorsement of his constituents, the fact that the great honest elements of all parties acclaim his service in the investigation and exposure of the historic naval oil reserves conspiracy, and the recovery of the gigantic loot to the public domain, entitle him to as many re-elections to the senate as he can live to enjoy.

Indeed, there are many millions of good democrats in the nation who would rejoice to support him for the presidency. That he would be a chief magistrate of high honor, lofty ideals, and patriotic consecration, scarcely anyone, political ally or enemy, would presume to doubt.

In the present condition of national affairs and the foreshadowed aspect of future politics to characterize the two major parties, it would be in the nature of an irreparable subtraction from the forces of the democratic party to lose the services of Senator Walsh in the senates of the next six years following March 4, 1931—not to speak of the loss to the country.

The hope will be felt by many millions of Americans that Montana will keep in the senate a representative of such personal probity, clarity of conduct, and power in political science as is Senator Walsh.

FROM FARM TO TOWN.

The advisory committee on the census has decided that the enumerators of the population will also gather information concerning the migration from rural districts to the city. That information collected nation-wide should be of much value to those who are concerned in problems of the farm and means for making farm life attractive enough to keep enough expert agriculturists employed to insure a full supply of farm products for our American people.

The thought of this country ever being compelled to import, as many other countries have to do, the supplies that can be abundantly produced on our own lands for ten times our present population is one that good Americans continue to repel. Yet, in some phases, such importations already enter into our present farm problem. California, and Florida, and other areas near to our seaboards are protesting the coming in to the United States of more than a billion dollars of agricultural products from foreign countries, too much of which volume is competitive with home products.

It is not likely, however, that such importations have any effect to cause migration from farms to the cities and towns. There are other more visible and understandable causes, such as the unprofitable prices of farm products due to oversupply, to restricted purchasing power in foreign markets, and to the high prices the farmers have to pay to the protected makers of the goods, wares and machinery they have to buy. Those are the elements of the farm relief problem now on the boards.

But there are other causes of the ex-farm movement which have been proved and catalogued. The great growth of industrialism in towns and cities, with increased labor demands caused by the drastic restriction of labor immigration, the higher wages and better opportunities for freer living amid urban scenes and utilities, account in large measure for the trek of young farm people of both sexes to the cities.

Another strong and significant factor in the cityward movement has been identified by the child bureau of the federal department of labor. It is the employment of farm children upon the rough tasks of the farm at too early ages, and keeping them too constantly on them. The children instinctively feel the injustice of the hard labor that wears upon their bodies and their naturally mercurial minds. They secretly determine that farming is slavery for them and that they will escape from it whenever they find the way. That way is to quit the farm at their first breath of freedom and go to the towns for whatever fortune they may find there.

There are 500,000 children between the ages of 10 and 18 years doing farm work in the southern states, and of 26,000 young farmers in Alabama last year only 60 of them could be persuaded to take courses voluntarily in vocational agriculture.

Evidently there is need of better child raising than of better cotton and corn raising.

In London all but four crimes of last year were solved by the police, but in Georgia there are motorists flitting about with 1928 license tags.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Napoleon.

The subject of Bonaparte is an inexhaustible one. Hardly has one writer finished with him or another starts up. Within a month the French reading public has been treated to three different versions; one by Herr Emil Ludwig, in translation from the German of course; one by Joseph Delteil, who is an epic poet, and a third by Charles Maurras, the head of a school of moral philosophy. Delteil thinks to have discovered the secret of Napoleon's life. According to him Bonaparte pursued one single aim, always, although often unconsciously: that of conquering India. All the rest was only pastime, manoeuvres, preparations. The East attracted him. Egypt and Moscow were the two expeditions that pleased him most. With M. Maurras it's another story. He has put out a serious book. One feels that to M. Maurras it would have been much better for France and the world that Napoleon had never existed. He admits the Corsican's glory and the prestige that his name alone gave, and contiues to give, to France. But to M. Maurras, who is the chief of the royalists, Napoleon meant the revolution led in organized channels. M. Maurras detests the revolution and its child democracy. Hence the title of his book "Napoleon, Enemy of France." Perhaps he was an evil influence, but he was no conscious enemy of the people among whom he wished to be buried because he had "loved them so much," as the inscription above the crypt in the Invalides says.

Housing Shortage 245 B. C.

Certain savants have succeeded in grouping and deciphering a number of papyri in the Cairo museum. These papers belong to the legacy of one Zenon, a big businessman, who flourished around 245 B. C. and who in the course of his travels over the Near East, was in the habit of writing home a good deal. At any rate 1,000 of his letters were discovered three years ago and the Egyptologists have been having a high time with Zenon's correspondence ever since. They have dug out several rather savory observations by Zenon on the comparative beauty and modes of Judean and Syrian women. Commercial travelers never were exactly stricken with blindness when it came to such things and Zenon was no exception. Zenon is distinguished from his brethren only by reason of the fact that he wrote home about it. Still there were other matters that occupied his mind. Of the one thousand letters a quarter have been deciphered and in all 250 Zenon chants a song of lamentation over the housing shortage. He is always imploring somebody to go and see somebody else for him with the object of throwing a third somebody else out of an residence, so that Zenon himself might occupy the apartment when he comes home to Egypt. Up to the 250th epistle Zenon had no luck so that he begins to suspect that the end of the world must be at hand, seeing that overpopulation deprives him of a suitable home.

If You Know About This Write Mrs. Olson Direct

Editor Constitution: Some time ago you published a letter from me asking about my Georgia ancestors.

I have received a number of letters in response to my inquiry. From the letters I have received I must have given the wrong information as to what I desired.

I am trying to locate relatives of Richard D. Moore, who was my great grandfather, and married Olive Kirkland.

My great grandfather, Richard D. Moore, known around Walton, Fayette and Gilmer counties as Colonel Moore, had five children, Agustus Clayton Haywood Moore, (my grandfather), Phillip C. Moore, Homer and Clayton Moore and one daughter, Lucina, or Louisa, Moore. She was burned to death while a small child. All three boys, Agustus, Phillip and Clayton, came west in 1855, the other brother, Homer, remained in Georgia. There is a question in my mind as to whether it was Homer or Clayton that remained in Georgia.

As we are very anxious to get in touch with some of the family or some one who knew the family, I am wondering if you will print this letter?

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL.

Labor Day Reveals the Esteem Atlanta Awards to Her Working Citizens.

Today Atlanta will do honor to her knights of labor. Serried banks of her citizens will admire and cheer them as they march in celebrant columns upon this holiday especially set apart for their enjoyment and honoring by every sovereign state of the Union.

No army equal to that of labor can be marshaled anywhere in the eras of peace. In America it is our greatest and most powerful army for all the purposes of peace, prosperity and national permanence. Its weapons are those of production and not of destruction; their efforts are those of civilization and not of calamity and chaos; their objectives are human happiness and not the immolation of men, women and children upon the pyres of war, and blood and earthly hells. Devolve the fate of the race upon the heart and hands of labor and soon there would be on earth neither wars nor rumors of wars.

Atlanta Is a Triumph of Labor.

Of all the cities of the nation Atlanta owes conspicuous and constant gratitude and honor to its great labor citizenship. Modern Atlanta, redeemed from the ashen debris of the War Between the States, left to us by the Sherman hell-makers, is one of the unique and brilliant triumphs of loyal and constructive labor.

From the very hour when we quenched the smouldering fires of the almost wholly destroyed city, to clean off the fallen bricks and chip off the charred timbers, our labor element has never missed a stroke of toil and determination to make their city a powerful and radiant exponent of American enterprise and progress.

As a constant eye-witness of the upbuilding and expansion of Atlanta from 1864 until today I can testify that the city owes her growth, stability, magnificence and fame more to labor than to all the other agencies that have combined with it to make those qualities possible and actual. Neither ambition nor capital, alone or together, could have achieved Atlanta without reliance upon the energies and fidelity of labor.

The City's Blood and Sinews.

Leaving aside all comparisons and looking only here at home, every intelligent and observant Atlantan knows that labor has supplied the life-blood and sinews of the growing city. It has most largely recruited itself from native, congenial sources and from its own loins. It has never invited alien spirits and ideals from either American or foreign fields. It has given neither welcome nor place in its ranks to proletarian fanatics, bolshevists, or those so-called "class conscious" agitators who foment discontent and discord instead of concord with the other branches of the social hegemony.

In fact, Atlanta labor has always been distinguished by its common sense, conservatism, and constructive civic spirit.

Its chosen leaders have been solid men of sane minds and progressive principles. Their counsels have always been conservative and have been successful in winning for labor the fullest respect and sympathy of the community at large. Hence the harmonious full-partnership relations between labor and the people of the city in general have been preserved in a remarkable way, and have equally benefited them all.

Justice Rules in All Relations.

One of the most accomplished of our national secretaries of labor at Washington once remarked to me that labor relations in Atlanta and Georgia have been for many decades "as nearly ideal as we have found in any state of the union."

That was high and thoroughly deserved praise.

It has happened sometimes that we have had temporary sporadic strikes in some local industries, but they were speedily settled upon terms of justice and mutual regard for the equities of the particular case. But Atlanta and Georgia have been remarkably free of large and bitter conflicts between employers and workers. And for that happy escape we are obligated to the wisdom and practical diplomacy of the union labor leaders of the city and state.

The prosperity and stability of the growing industrialism of Georgia are more dependent upon the just and amicable relations between employers and employes than upon any other factors of our system. It is a comforting and promiseful thought to all interests that in Georgia labor is not striving to enslave capital and capital is not endeavoring to make spoils of labor.

What the Future Holds Out.

There never were more opulent prospects held out to Atlanta—prospects of population, enterprise, business accretions, investments and profit-making industries than right now.

But if we were here the victims of hot-tempered quarrels between the users of capital and the men of labor who create capital and give it worth, our prospects would be almost as insubstantial as "painted ships upon a painted ocean."

Our labor citizenship is made up of men and women who are intelligent, self-respecting and of independent minds. Mostly they are home-owners and home-makers, having a personal stake in the common welfare, in the communities' peace and prosperity. They and their children are large elements in our churches, our schools and our social activities.

No wonder, then, that Atlantans in general hold them in high esteem and feel that to them they owe a supreme debt of thankfulness and honor.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK

Hollywood, Calif., September 1.—Present-tossing is quite a vogue in the village. It is the custom for million-dollar stars to bestow such small tokens of esteem as platinum cigarette cases or diamond encrusted watches upon their producers. The producers return the compliment the following week, or on opening night, or any old time at all.

You don't really need an occasion to give a present. The Mercedes-Benz Al Jolson gave Joseph Schenck was just a little knick-knack given of a summer's day. It is all a car should be. Its gleaming speed invites the traffic policemen and its color scheme — a heavenly gossly-brown — is distinctive.

Inside it is a marvel of luxury. A specially woven Chinese rug for the floor. It is upholstered in honey-beige velvet, hand-embroidered in blossoming boughs and amazing birds. The paneling of doors and sides is pale burled maple wood with inlays of fancy woods. The appointments are all of red tortoise and gold,

And speaking of Hollywood ways, the first thing the village did to a metropolitan star it has taken into its talkie midst was to order a permanent wave.

The gentle in question is famous for his he-man bearing. He is a swashbuckling baritone—a singing musketeer—a devil-may-care hero who fills the romance bill to the full. He has managed to do this in the past with his own locks or with the aid of wigs. But the village has notions about straight-haired boys. In the opinion of those who make movies, a simple haircomb never made a maiden's heart beat faster. The boys with the curls get the girls.

This is the reason Lawrence Tibbett was hustled off to a Wilshire boulevard beauty parlor to acquire ambrosial curls. Fate blessed him with a gorgeous sense of humor, so he's enjoying his movie adventures tremendously.

today, and the trans-Jordania frontier situation is improved.

The communique said the high commissioner of Syria is arranging to reinforce the French troops on the southern Syrian frontier to prevent armed Arabs entering Palestine.

An Exchange Telegraph dispatch today said that French authorities at Damascus had sent armored cars to assist police in closing bazaars after six different demonstrations by Arabs there. Twenty persons were arrested.

PALESTINE TROUBLE ECHOES IN POLAND.

Warsaw, September 1.—(AP)—A group of Jewish communists and radical socialists broke up a meeting of Warsaw Zionists held in conection with the disorders in Palestine and in a free-for-all fight which followed six persons were seriously injured and 30 slightly hurt. The radicals denounced the meeting, saying the trouble in Palestine was caused by the "Jewish bourgeoisie."

CHANCELLOR DEMANDS PEACE BE RESTORED.

Jerusalem, September 1.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency.)—Sir John Chancellor, high commissioner of Palestine, today issued a proclamation which was distributed from airplanes over Jerusalem and other cities and villages. It read as follows:

"I have returned from the United Kingdom to find to my distress the country in a state of disorder and a prey to unlawful violence. I have learned with horror of atrocious acts committed by bodies of ruthless and bloodthirsty evildoers, of savage murders perpetrated upon the defenseless members of the Jewish population regardless of age and sex, accompanied, as at Hebron, by acts of unspeakable savagery, of the burning of farms and houses in town and country and of looting and destruction of property. These crimes have brought upon their authors the execration of all civilized people throughout the world.

"My first duties are to restore order in the country and inflict stern punishment upon those found guilty of the acts of violence. All necessary measures will be taken to achieve those ends and I charge all inhabitants of Palestine to assist me in discharging these duties.

"In order to put a stop to the mendacious statements that have recently been circulated on the subject of the Wailing Wall, I hereby, with the concurrence of his majesty's government, make it known that I intend to give effect to the principles laid down on the white paper of the 19th of November, 1928, after methods of applying them have been determined."

The white paper acknowledged the Jewish right of access to the western wall of the temple commonly known as the Wailing Wall for the purposes of devotion. Jewish worshippers are entitled to bring appurtenances as permitted under the Turkish regime. They are not, however, entitled to put up a screen separating men and women worshippers, as was attempted on the Day of Atonement, 1928, when British police officials tore down the screen and dispersed the worshippers.

ATTEMPT TO REFORM JEWISH LEGION.

London, September 1.—(AP)—A movement was started here today to revive the Jewish Legion which fought in the World War under General Allenby in Palestine. The movement is in response to appeals reaching Zionist organizations from all over the world from Jewish youths anxious to go to the defense of their brethren in Palestine. London members of the former Jewish Legion are trying to form a committee with this object in view and to see the minister of war on the subject.

MONSTER MEETING HELD IN LONDON.

London, September 1.—(AP)—Thousands of Jews were unable to gain admission tonight to the already crowded Albert hall, where Lord Melchett presided over a Zionist meeting to "voice the feeling of horror and indignation at the massacre of Jews in Palestine."

Messages of sympathy were read from Lord Reading, Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, General Smuts and others. A resolution was passed by acclamation demanding that the government without delay effect a just and final settlement of the question of rights of Jewish worship at the Wailing Wall.

Lord Melchett said it was almost incredible that any government could have allowed such a condition of things to arise. The government had proved helpless to carry out its most elementary duties to protect the lives and property of its citizens. Asking who had supplied the Arabs with arms, the chairman declared it was a deep-seated conspiracy which must be unraveled.

The award was in doubt because of national regulations which specify that contestants must land on the field from which they take off. Inasmuch as Reid was seen in the air after he had eclipsed the mark, race officials decided to grant his record.

After the opening ceremony today 2,500 homing pigeons were released for a "non-stop" flight to Buffalo. The birds flew at randon above the airport for several minutes before lighting out on their homeward flight of 180 miles.

Arthur J. Davis, of Lansing, Mich., won the second section of the 75-mile Australian pursuit race. J. W. Whitman was second and George W. Haldeman, New Castle, Del., was third.

Charles "Speed" Holman, who twice has thrilled the crowds by stunting a three-ton transport plane, won the men's speed event over a 75-mile course. He maintained an average speed of 147.37 miles an hour. H. S. Mythres, of Defiance, Ohio, was second, and Snyder Hall, of St. Louis, placed third.

R. W. Cantwell, of Tulsa, Okla., won the heavy cabin plane race at an average speed of 152.25 miles an hour. He flew a Lockheed monoplane. Captain Roscoe Turner, who arrived here Saturday night in the non-stop derby from Los Angeles, piloted another Lockheed to second place.

TWO SAVE LIVES BY 'CHUTE LEAP.

Curtiss Field, N. Y., September 1. (United News.)—Lieutenant John L. H. Trunk, Curtiss flying school instructor, and his pupil, Miss Fay Gillis, 20, of New York city, saved themselves by parachute jumps when the wings fell from their plane at an altitude of 2,000 feet.

Trunk dived from 5,000 feet. At 2,000 feet he tried to straighten out. The wings came off his little biplane, and he and Miss Gillis leaped from it with their parachutes.

LADY MARY HEATH GREATLY IMPROVED.

Cleveland, Ohio, September 1.—(AP) The condition of Lady Mary Heath, noted aviatrix who was seriously injured in an airplane crash Thursday, was the best tonight since the accident, physicians at Lakeside hospital here reported. Her condition had not reached the point where physicians could be certain of her recovery, however.

CHICAGO PLANE UP 221 HOURS.

Chicago, September 1.—(AP)—Russell Mossman and C. E. Steele, endurance fliers piloting the Chicago-We Will, completed their 221st hour in the air at 4:31 p. m. today, and dropped a message asserting that their plane is good for 1,200 hours in the air.

They are already more than half way to the present 421-hour endurance flight record hung up by the St. Louis Robin.

"We expect to beat the Robin's record by at least 500 hours," the note said.

ARMY SHUTTLE PASSES OMAHA.

Omaha, Neb., September 1.—(AP)—Winging its way westward in a second attempt to set a new trans-continental endurance record, the Boeing airmail plane, Hornet Shuttle, piloted by Captain Ira Eaker, was twice refueled over Fort Crook field here tonight, and departed for Cheyenne, Wyo.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

NO ARTICHOKES FOR DIABETES OF COURSE NO HONEY.

Honey producers—meaning the people in the industry, not the bees—are oiling up their heavy artillery and engaging in small arms practice, in anticipation of my annual slighting remarks about this complex yet quite natural mixture of cane sugar, glucose or dextrose, levulose, water, pollen, dust, bits of the remains of bees, an occasional dash of formic acid, fragments of comb, coloring matter from flowers or plants, traces of mineral salts and generally a reasonable amount of vitamins. That is a fair view of the composition of honey; I submit it without comment on the aims or purposes of the manufacturers. I have not the slightest interest in the life of the bees, nor any desire to rob the dear little beggars of the fruit of their toil. In return I ask only that they shall feel and manifest the same indifference toward my existence and business. I have no rheumatism today, thanks to diathermy. But even if I had a touch of the genuine thing I should much prefer to worry along without any therapeutic effort on the part of the bees. In fact, I question the efficacy of the bee sting treatment; it is much too feeble for rheumatiz that has really settled anywhere. At least so it seems to me. While I was receiving the diathermy I had a practical demonstration of this principle. It was a pretty hot day, and when the doctor had the gadget working in supplementary high and left me for a moment to attend to a paying patient, I grew restive and perspiracious and in trying to reach for my hanky somehow I managed to disconnect one of the electrodes, which began to bounce playfully against my neck. It was like being struck by lightning; I didn't feel anything, but I saw flashes, scotomata and sparks and smelled mutton frying. Upon subsequent exploration of the crater it was estimated (as the papers would say) that several lusty hives of bees working in shifts might make a similar impression in 24 hours. But I didn't mind, because the diathermy brought complete relief to the lame shoulder in only three or four sittings.

In some communities honey purports to be a desirable food for diabetic patients. Somehow the notion prevails that the levulose (invert sugar) that constitutes approximately half of all the sugar of honey, is readily assimilated and utilized by one with diabetes. Perhaps it is a mite better adapted for one with diabetes than is ordinary cane sugar or glucose or fruit sugars. But if a diabetic individual eats honey or levulose at all freely glucose soon appears in the urine and an excess of blood sugar is usually found. So the bees have little or nothing on the cane or the beets or whatever fruit one prefers, as a source of food for the diabetic individual.

Honey ordinarily contains a fair amount of vitamin A and vitamin B, but that is scarcely a good reason for including it in the diet of a diabetic person, for there is no good evidence that honey is superior to orange in vitamin content, and orange contains less than a fifth as much carbohydrate as honey does, and every diabetic knows that carbohydrate in his diet must be strictly rationed according to his individual tolerance and activity.

Recently I have had many inquiries about the value of artichokes in the diet of the diabetic patient. There must be some cause for this sudden interest in artichokes in a particular community. All I can say is that artichokes contain over 15 per cent of carbohydrate, a special carbohydrate called inulin, which is readily changed to levulose in digestion. Perhaps such a vegetable may be taken in slightly greater quantity than other vegetables by a diabetic patient. But the difference is too small to be of much importance.

Battle Over Tariff Bill Will Open Thursday As Democrats Attack Measure

Tactics Will Be Effort To Eliminate All Schedules Not Directly Affecting Agriculture.

Washington, September 1.—(AP)—The long-awaited senatorial struggle over the tariff will get under way this week with the introduction of the bill as passed by the house and revised by the republicans on the senate finance committee.

Chairman Smoot expects to offer the measure soon after a meeting of the full committee Wednesday morning, which he has called to act on the formal report. This will be only a perfunctory session as the republican majority makes it certain that a favorable report will be ordered quickly.

The bill is expected to lay over a day, however, under the rules, and on Thursday the fight begins in earnest.

Unless all signs fail, the democrats will open a concerted attack on the bill from the outset. Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, a minority member of the finance committee, is expected to ask priority for his resolution to eliminate all sections of the bill except those relating to agriculture and the special and administrative provisions.

Ordinarily, committee amendments would be in order first, but the republicans have not announced definitely their plans should the Thomas resolution be injected into the proceedings at the start. The democrats and republican independents are expected to muster much support for the proposal, but because of the fact that a similar proposal by Senator Borah, of Idaho, lost by one vote last June, no one will hazard a prediction as to the outcome.

As evidence of the uncertainty of the situation, the democratic members of the finance committee have prepared a program of opposition to many of the bill's industrial duties and are ready to offer scores of substitutes for amendments to be presented by the committee majority and other proposals designed to curtail many of the proposed and existing rates.

The republican independents, who likewise have carried on a drive against the bill since its completion by the committee republicans, are holding up announcement of their definite program until the strategic moment arrives. Broadly speaking, they are expected to join hands with the democrats in an effort to confine the revision as nearly as possible to farm and related products.

President Hoover recommended a "limited" revision with generous attention given agricultural levies. He thought, too, that some industrial commodities which were shown to have suffered unduly from recent competition from abroad might need additional protection. It has been generally regarded, in republican as well as democratic circles, that the house bill went far beyond the program the president had in mind.

In reframing the house measure, the finance committee republicans made 431 rate changes, including 254 decreases and 177 increases. The republican regulars believe the bill now comes nearer to the "limited" revision proposed by the president, but the western republicans and the democrats remain to be convinced.

As evidence of this, Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, a democratic member of the tariff-framing committee, declared in a statement today that the entire flexible clause authorizing the president to change customs levies after investigation by the tariff commission was "one-sided and unfair and has been made worse by the amendments in the senate bill."

The main idea appeared to be, he said, not to take the tariff out of politics, but to keep it out of the congress.

"Then the forces of high protection," he added, "would sit very pretty, indeed; reaping all the advantages of the promises made at election time with exemption from the trouble and embarrassment of themselves delivering the goods afterwards. It is another move to delegate to a bureaucracy the duties of congress."

Senator Walsh saw in the proposed provision authorizing the tariff commission and the president to consider differences in competition between foreign and domestic articles, including transportation costs to the ports of entry, in determining rates to equalize such differences a descrimination against seaboard manufacturing industries and in favor of interior producers.

"If these efforts succeed," he said, "all manufacturing businesses like the woolen, boots and shoes will be driven west in order to get wool and hides without transportation rail costs."

The week-end was not without its republican rejoiner. Chairman Smoot took issue with the argument of Representative Mary T. Norton, democrat, New Jersey, that the pending measure would make women pay from 10 to 75 per cent more for their wearing apparel and household goods, contending the tariff "primarily has nothing to do with the price level, as economic history abundantly proves."

Mrs. Norton, said the Utah senator, was "simply repeating the false tale told by the democrats for many years, and is actually working a great harm to the thousands of women employed in the American factories already languishing because of unfair foreign markets."

"The argument for or against a tariff," he continued, "cannot be settled with sole reference to the effects upon the living costs to consumers of the articles placed in the protected list.

"If Mrs. Norton will consult the thousands of women employes in the mills, shops and establishments of New Jersey and New York, she will find that she is betraying their interests."

Smoot said neither Mrs. Norton nor the women in her district would be taxed by the proposed shoe duty of 20 per cent, but that it would "help keep thousands of women wage earners in employment at regular wages."

The same argument, he continued, applied to stockings, dresses, coats, hats, underwear, toilet articles and everything else used by women.

ZEPPELIN DEPARTS FOR HOME HANGAR

permitted, to swing on a southerly course by way of Bermuda and the Azores. He thought he probably would reach Freidrichshafen on Wednesday.

It had seemed for a time that the Graf would not be able to get out of the hangar before late tonight. Until dawn today gusty cross winds that delayed her start, originally set for midnight, were still creating an area of atmospheric turbulence about the hangar.

As a matter of fact, all precedents were upset when the Graf was walked out about 7 o'clock this morning. Experience with the Los Angeles has taught the navy that the safest time to take her out of the hangar is between midnight and dawn, and Captain Lehmann, when he released the ground crew last night said that if the wind did not die down by 4 a. m. the chances were that he would not be able to start before late tonight.

Wind Subsides.

By 7 a. m., however, the wind had subsided so that the leaves on the trees along the road to the station hardly rippled and the airship was brought out of the hangar, tail first, with no difficulty.

The 22 passengers, the less experienced of whom were twice disappointed last night by bugle calls and orders which sounded as though they were about to start moving, finally slept aboard ship, but in the hangar. Even before the start was postponed, about midnight, some of those who had made the trip around the world had retired and by 1 a. m., save for a dim light in the main salon, the entire ship was dark.

At a window, watching with keen interest the preparations for departure both last night and this morning, was Mrs. Harry A. Hobson, of Logansport, Ind., who only decided to make the trip as the special train bringing the passengers was pulling into Lakehurst last night.

Down in the crowd that swarmed about the compact ring of sailors and marines on Toctue Gondola, was her husband, it was learned later. After Captain Lehmann postponed the start last night, Hobson was given a bed in the officers' quarters. He disappeared in the crowd as the ship rose into the misty sky this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobson had come on from Logansport to bid bon voyage to Mrs. Charles B. Parker, of Cleveland, Mrs. Hobson's aunt, who was expected to be the only woman aboard. They came to Lakehurst with her on the passengers' train.

On the train Mrs. Hobson heard that there was an empty berth. Five minutes before the train reached Lakehurst she announced that if she could get aboard without a passport she would make the trip. Arrangements were made for her passport to be cabled to her.

Mrs. Hobson carried no baggage at all, Hamburg-American line officials said, and Alfred C. Bernheimer, New York broker, had only a week-end bag.

Other Americans among the 22 passengers were Edward P. Frost, brother of Jack Frost, who was killed in the Dole air derby to Hawaii; Dr. William M. Scholl, of Chicago; John W. Schnitzler, republican national committeeman, of Froid, Mont.; Paul L. Beck, of Baltimore; R. A. L. Bogan, of Syracuse, N. Y.; Frederick S. Hogg, of Mount Vernon, N. Y.; Harry Vissering, Goodyear-Zeppelin director, and three United States navy officers.

Speculation was aroused during preparations for the Graf's departure last night by the discovery of a bullet hole in one of the fabric cells. As the ship had been thoroughly examined at Los Angeles during its stop there on its 21-day dash around the world, it was believed that the slug must have torn into the ship somewhere between California and Lakehurst. The hole was easily patched and the ship's officers were inclined to take the incident lightly, although acknowledging inflammable hydrogen in the ship's bag it might have been disastrous.

ECKENER UNNOTICED IN GOTHAM STATION.

New York, September 1.—(AP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener passed through the Pennsylvania station unnoticed by the more than 300 persons there tonight, just two days after the city's millions had acclaimed him for piloting the dirigible Graf Zeppelin around the world.

The German air hero, who this morning had watched from the ground the departure of his ship from Lakehurst, N. J., for Friedrichshafen, boarded a train for Cleveland, where he will attend the air races.

From Cleveland he plans to go to Akron, Ohio, to inspect the two Zeppelins in course of construction there and to confer with officials of the Goodyear Zeppelin Company, which holds the American rights to the Zeppelin patents.

Dr. Eckener said that he would return to New York Thursday a[illegible] for Germany Saturday.

Hoover's First Six Months Serve To Emphasize Novel Idea of Commission Rule

Innovation Draws Favorable and Adverse Criticism, But President Keeps on Naming Boards

Washington, September 1.—(United News.)—The "commission idea" in federal government stands out as the principal innovation of President Hoover in his six months in the White House, a period of many new ideas and activity rarely, if ever, equalled at the outset of a peace-time administration.

Just how far the president has carried the commission idea is revealed by the fact that two of the major problems of his administration, farm relief and prohibition, now are in the hands of commissions, while he has appointed or announced his intention of appointing several others to take charge of other new programs he is developing.

Gets Much Criticism.

Other commissions already appointed are assigned to carry out the president's program for oil conservation, to devise ways and means of transferring surface rights in public land states back to the states, to investigate child welfare needs, to reduce army costs, and to survey a route for a probable canal across Nicaragua, the last named, however, to carry out an act of congress.

The president has even introduced the commission idea into the handling of patronage in the southern states, always a delicate problem, by having advisory councils in various states to supervise patronage matters.

The president's commission idea has attracted much attention here, some of it critical. He announced recently, however, that he intended to appoint many more commissions. There is keen interest in what problem he will tackle in this manner next.

Has Active Beginning.

The commissions have no power in themselves. They investigate and report to congress. The final success of their work depends upon what congress does with their recommendations, and congress has not always been kindly to such recommendations.

The "commission idea" is interesting as a new method, a truly Hoover innovation. It has not reached the point yet where its success can be told. The Hoover administration to this time has been a series of beginnings, in this as in other matters.

The beginnings, however, have been revolutionary in some respects, opening a new course. The administration has had an active beginning, it is generally conceded. As for actual results, two stand out prominently, one in the domestic field, the other in the foreign.

The former is the passage of the administration's farm relief bill, and the beginning of the federal farm board's task to bring relief. The other is the president's leadership in a move for further disarmament, which has overshadowed every foreign development, including invocation of the Kellogg pact to halt hostilities between China and Russia.

Navy Reduction Near Agreement.

The president has pushed his disarmament program more swiftly than any other, with the result that negotiations between the United States and Great Britain have reached such a stage that an agreement is expected in the next few days.

In a series of surprising and dramatic moves, beginning soon after he assumed office, President Hoover has disclosed his abilities as a maker of publicity on a giant scale. He went further than naval disarmament, linking with that a move to cut American army costs, which has not yet gone beyond the commission stage.

With naval disarmament plans almost at a climax, and with prohibition, farm relief and other problems in the hands of commissions, the chief problem before the president at this time is the tariff. He has given no inkling of his course, but observers generally agree that despite successes in other lines, the tariff bill may, in the end, determine the success or failure of his administration.

The Marines Who Wouldn't Fight!

Told by "Hard-Boiled" Butler

(A Sturdy U. S. Admiral—And the "Feather Treatment!")

General Butler (hatless) and the governor of Chihli province watching the Third brigade of marines pass in review at Tientsin.

(This is the second of eight articles in which Major General Smedley Darlington Butler is telling the diverting story of the bloodless conquest of China by the United States marines he took out there in 1927 to protect American lives in the country's raging civil war.

BY SMEDLEY D. BUTLER,
Major General, U. S. M. C.

(Copyright, 1929, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

We went to China early in 1927 as an invading force, ready and prepared—and many of us exceedingly anxious—for a scrap, but we remained to become unofficial good-will ambassadors and trade envoys.

Maj. Gen. Butler.

Today I have different ideas about the Chinese people and the Americans who make their homes in China. The two years I spent there on our "bloodless invasion" caused me to change my mind.

When I saw a Chinese during these two years I looked upon him as a friend of our people. I didn't think of him as one who might, at any moment, turn fanatic and start to butcher foreigners. I thought of him as a potential user of American-made merchandise, as a citizen of a huge country which will, in the future, take up our surplus of manufactured products and permit us at home to continue to enjoy our great prosperity.

My hard-boiled ideas are gone. These citizens of the United States have gone out to China in good faith, representing our business and extending our trade. Some time we will need the trade these people are getting for us. They are our flesh and blood, and when they are in danger we must protect them, regardless of the cost.

We can't ask them to pack up their bags and come home at the first sign of trouble. Everything they own is out there. If they left hurriedly at the first indication of possible difficulty they would not only lose all their earthly possessions but the confidence and esteem of the Chinese.

Whatever trade they have built up by their efforts would be lost to us. When quiet was restored and they returned they would find that the other foreign nationals, who had remained, protected by their troops, had gobbled up all the trade, and the Americans would have to start anew.

Other of our citizens are out there as missionaries; they are spreading the gospel of Christ, teaching the Chinese the fundamentals of our educational methods and aiding them in the work of health and sanitation. We cannot ask them to leave at every sign of danger, they have the confidence of the Chinese people and they must remain behind, regardless of the danger, to keep that confidence. So every once in a while we read that in some far interior post, a thousand miles from where our troops are stationed, another missionary has been murdered by bandits.

A Courageous Missionary.

But these missionaries will not come to a safe haven when we ask them. I remember a missionary who suited me right down to the ground. I think he would have made a great marine. He had a mission way out in the interior and he came in to Tientsin one time for supplies. He told me he was the only American in the entire province. I informed him that we had no way of protecting him if trouble should start, and asked him to come to Tientsin or Shanghai where he would be safe.

"Come in out of that place," I urged him. "All you are leaving behind is your hut. Come into Tientsin or Shanghai, where we can protect you. The storm will soon be over and you can go back."

He looked at me and said: "I am spreading the doctrine of Christianity and I am doing it in the same way Jesus did, and I don't recall that he had a bodyguard. If my religion is worthy of support it doesn't have to be dashed down by a bayonet. I will stay out there and have it out with them." No one harmed him.

The task of the marines in China was to protect the lives of the Americans. The 5,000 marines we had there represented the largest mobilization of American troops on the sod of a friendly nation since the World War.

During the entire two-year period of our visit these marines, reputedly so blood-thirsty and fight-provoking, and actually so in battle, did not fire a single shot, except at target practice—and the Chinese government built the rifle range on ground it lent to us.

With my staff I reached Shanghai, at the mouth of the Yangtse river, March 25, 1927, being receded by the fourth regiment of marines, which had been ordered to China from the Philippines. Several days before the unfortunate Nanking incident had occurred.

When the nationalist, or southern army, which we were eventually to see emerge victorious in the struggle for control of the huge republic, took over Nanking, the ancient capital of China, and now once more the seat of the government, it marked the loss of the last stronghold of the northern army south of the Yangtse rivers.

The Outbreak in Nanking.

In the rioting and looting which followed the evacuation of one army and the occupation of the other, seven foreigners, including one American, Dr. J. H. Williams, vice president of Nanking university, were killed, scores were assaulted, beaten and robbed, and several foreign consulates, including that of the United States, were attacked.

Gunboats of the allied powers, which were lying in the Yantzo-Kiang, "The River Son of the Sea," shelled the city, while relief columns under cover of the friendly barrage rescued the several hundred foreigners who had sought refuge with the Socony Company during the terrible days of rioting.

At the same time the situation in Shanghai, the most important port in central China, with its thousands of Europeans, Japanese and Americans, and the concentration or refuge point for foreigners for the entire area, was also fraught with danger.

March 21 the nationalist army had occupied the city, and the residents of the international settlement and the French concession were fearful of outbreaks similar to that of Nanking. Twenty thousand allied troops, including the 1,300 men of the Fourth regiment marines, were on constant guard in the concessions lest mobs of uncontrolled and undisciplined troops break through the lines and sack and plunder, attack and kill.

On the evening of the day I reached Shanghai to assume command of the marines who were then in China and who were to come, the high military and naval representatives of the powers represented in China, including Great Britain, France, Japan, Italy and Belgium, gathered on the U. S. S. Pittsburgh, the flagship of Rear Admiral C. S. Williams, commanding the United States Asiatic fleet. The other powers had determined to send a fleet of combined allied forces to shell Nanking—as an example of what would follow any further outrages on foreign nations.

They invited Admiral Williams to join in the expedition. The old admiral, since retired, who is representative of all that is the finest and most courageous in our navy, said rather bluntly that the United States fleet would not join in any such action.

Admiral Sticks by His Guns.

"Wel," said the spokesman for the allied powers, "we are going up tomorrow."

"All right, you go ahead; we will be here when you get back," Admiral Williams replied.

The allies were eager to present a united front. They were insistent that Admiral Williams join them. When he showed his determination to remain behind they asked what the Americans proposed to do in the way of avenging the Nanking insult.

The old gentleman, a clear-thinking, hard-fighting sailor with a quaint sense of humor and a happy knack of illustrating each point of a decision or statement with an anecdote, replied:

"We are going to give the Chinese the feather treatment."

The others, by the expressions on their faces, didn't understand.

"Did you ever hear," the Admiral continued, "of the old medical college professor and great physician who swallowed his teeth?

"He was choking to death and the members of his family were frantic. They lived in a suburb and an experienced physician was not available. Finally, in desperation, the daughter of the professor recalled that a young man who had just been graduated and who had been a pupil of the professor had opened an office around the corner. She rushed around and found the young physician waiting for his first patient.

"He hurried back to the professor and was informed of the facts. He looked at the professor. He scratched his head for a moment. Then a knowing smile came across his features. He ordered the daughter to remove the professor's shoes and socks. She did. He next called for a chicken feather. The young graduate took the feather and tickled the professor on the sole of his foot. The professor laughed and up came the teeth.

"'How did you happen to arrive at that peculiar method of treatment?' the professor asked.

"'Don't you remember,' the young man replied, 'that you repeatedly advised us, when we were confronted with a condition with which we did not know how to cope, that, to save our faces, we were to do something—to do something that wouldn't kill the patient, but to do something. As I didn't know what to do to save your life I realized that tickling your feet wouldn't kill you and that it would be doing something!'"

The allied fleet remained in Shanghai waters and the Nanking incident was later settled by diplomacy and without bloodshed.

It was the feather treatment the United States marines used on the Chinese—although at all times we were prepared for more drastic measures, and not an American was shot or robbed and not a Chinese was injured or insulted by our men, despite the many involved situations, many of them dangerous, in which we found ourselves, particularly in northern China, where our forces were to be concentrated for the greater part of our presence in China as the seat of war moved northward.

Workers Celebrate Leisure, Not Labor, Today, Says Davis

SECRETARY GIVES THANKS FOR MODERN MACHINES

Washington, September 1.—(AP)—Long before there was a Labor Day, James J. Davis, secretary of labor, started making Labor Day speeches, and he has kept right on, through all its "legal holiday" period, reaching his top record this year.

Five speeches, all carrying the message of an American labor freed by the modern machine from straining of sinews, are his contribution to the current Labor Day celebration. They will reach more hearers than any similar short "speech swing" of his career, except in the heat of political campaign.

One, by radio chain broadcast, went into American homes Saturday night. To his aged father, blind because of a mill accident, the secretary radioed a quaint song in rememberance of a Labor Day when the elder Davis paraded a puddling furnace down a Pennsylvania street. Thousands listened to Davis' own story of that early industrial era when labor meant "the sweat of the brow."

His outdoor speech tonight at Tarentum, Pa., is to be followed by three more "open air addresses" tomorrow. Coal miners, steel workers, aluminum workers, factory hands and members of railroad brotherhoods will have heard him when the all-day picnics Monday are concluded. From Tarentum to New Kensington and on to Tyrone and Altoona, he will rush, speaking his message to his "home folk" of Pennsylvania industrial towns.

"Labor Day has not lost its significance," he says, "not a bit of it! It is the day we rejoice in being relieved from the load on our backs! It is the day we triumph in getting more for our leisure."

At 14, then president of a boys' union, with four laboring years already behind him, James J. Davis made his first "Labor Day" speech. Boyishly, he declared in favor of some leisure for labor.

The secretary was ready to start on his 1929 speech-making trip when he paused to recall that first oratorical effort. He stood in the reception hall of his luxurious home. The holiday spirit was upon him. His brown eyes shone beneath hair crispy and handsomely white, as he humorously pictured the boy iron worker who became cabinet member for three successive presidents.

"Yes, I've been a long while in the Labor Day speech-making business," he commented. "First I made them in favor of Labor Day. Then I made them on Labor Day. I haven't missed a single celebration. I've made them all over the land, and on the sea. Last year, I was on shipboard, and talked to my fellow passengers.

"When I started, labor was labor. Now a finger pressure on an electric button does the work. One man feeds oil to fire the boilers where 49 shoveled coal. A machine turns out 49,000 bricks per hour in Chicago.

"The working man no longer parades his trade. He is either in an industry too highly specialized for parade purposes, or he has a nice little hot dog business of his own on the highway. In either case, it is his leisure, not his labor, that he celebrates today."

Fine Weather Will Continue, Forecast Says

Atlanta's "spell" of first rate weather is to continue today with fair skies and seasonable temperatures, according to the Washington representatives of the weather interests. There are to be a few clouds but the possibility of rain remains rather small. Temperatures are expected to range from slightly under 70 to well over 80 degrees.

Sunday's record was in keeping with those of several days previous in respect to temperatures, the range being from 64 to 84 degrees. There was no threat of rain to serve as a mental hazard to Sabbatical pleasure seekers.

MYSTERIOUS MALADY ATTACKS TWO MORE

Trion, Ga., September 1.—(AP)—Physicians continued their efforts to determine the exact nature of the mysterious malady which has caused the death of two children and seriously affected two others here within a week as the illness today gripped a fifth and sixth member of the Chandler family.

Food poisoning contracted at a birthday dinner for a 51-year-old grandmother was at first believed responsible for the sickness, but it was diagnosed today by some physicians as spinal meningitis and a quarantine established on the three residences of the children.

The dead are Dearwood Chandler, 3, and Carolyn Chandler, 11 months, children of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Chandler, whose two daughters, Violet, 12, and Winford, 9, are the latest to become ill. The children's cousins, Cathering Erwin, 8, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. George Erwin, and Leland Chandler, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Chandler, are in a critical condition.

HOOVER STUDIES FARM PROBLEM ON OUTING

President Mingles Work and Play at Shenandoah Camp.

Madison, Va., September 1.—(AP)—President Hoover expects to return to Washington early Tuesday morning from his fishing camp near here with a complete picture of the activities of the federal farm board laid before him.

Taking with him as guests on his week-end trip Secretary Hyde, Chairman Legge and four other members of the board, the president has spent every available minute in conferences on the agricultural situation, and plans to continue them through tomorrow.

He is particularly interested in finding out what the board has in mind for aiding the cotton and wheat growers, and also has obtained from the board members a first hand account of the recent meeting in Chicago at which plans to organize the Farmers' National Grain Marketing Association were discussed.

Many of the large party which accompanied the chief executive on his holiday jaunt spent this morning in a strenuous climb to the top of Fork mountain, one of the highest peaks of the proposed Shenandoah national park. Mr. Hoover has had erected there an observation tower, and after the climb to the top of the 4,000-foot peak, the group, including the host, clambered up in the tower from where they were afforded an unsurpassed view of the Virginia Blue Ridge mountains which form the Shenandoah valley.

The weather has been ideal for the outing, with a touch of fall in the air, and while the conferences have occupied much of Mr. Hoover's time, recreation has not been submerged. The men of the party have continued work on a number of small dams in the headwaters of the Rapidan river designed to make trout pools.

Mrs. Hoover and several other members of the party have taken extended horseback rides and hiking also has been generally indulged in.

Returning Tuesday morning, the president will have finished the longest holiday he has had since he entered the White House.

MYSTERY BULLET TAKES CHILD'S LIFE ON ILLINOIS FARM

Joliet, Ill., September 1.—(AP)—Mysteriously shot and fatally wounded while parents were absent from their farm near here, attending a funeral, 10-year-old Esther Groth died at a hospital here last night. The child's brother, Clarence, 15, and her sister, Viola, 16—the only ones known to have been around the house when the shooting occurred—were unable to give any helpful information about the apparent slaying.

Dr. G. H. Brannon, called by the children, found Esther lying on the kitchen floor, her wrist nearly severed by shotgun slugs and her shoulder deeply wounded. Before lapsing from consciousness the child said she did not know who shot her. No weapon was found, but a window was open.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Groth, said they knew of no antagonism among the youngsters. Clarence said he was in the barnyard when he heard the shot and Viola said she was upstairs.

You can depend on advertised products

ADVERTISING is the most powerful searchlight known to business. It focuses the attention of a community or a continent on a particular product. It gives that product the advantages of a widespread test by the buying public. But it cannot persuade that public to buy any article it has tested and found wanting. Manufacturers and merchants know this. They know also that advertising an unworthy product does only one thing: it brings magnified attention to its deficiencies. Therefore, before they undertake extensive or consistent advertising, they make sure that their product is right.

Consistent advertising is your best assurance of value and worth. It is fair evidence that the advertiser is offering a good product which has been thoroughly tested and approved.

TRIAL OF 16 STRIKERS TO BE RESUMED TODAY

Task of Selecting Jury Still Faces Attorneys After 6 Days' Efforts.

Charlotte, N. C., September 1.—(AP)—The Sunday before Labor Day found attorneys engaged in the trial of 16 men and women, members and organizers for the National Textile Workers' Union and affiliated organizations, accused of murder, preparing to resume tomorrow their task of getting a jury.

Through six days last week the Mecklenburg superior court, hearing the case against the labor union workers who are charged with having caused the death of G. F. Aderholt, chief of police of Gastonia, devoted its time to the routine business of choosing 12 acceptable men. When Judge M. V. Barnhill announced the week-end recess, there still were five vacant seats in the jury box.

The police chief was fatally wounded on the night of June 7 as he and four other officers entered the tent colony of the Loray mills strikers at Gastonia.

Four of the six days were spent in actual quizzing of prospective jurors. Nearly 200 veniremen heard their names called, took their stand in front of the witness box, answered questions fired at them by attorneys and the judge and then heard themselves dismissed.

The other two days were spent in serving summons on the first special venire of 200.

The second special venire of 300 names was called while the first was being exhausted, obviating the necessity of halting court operations.

During the examination of the veniremen, both sides proceeded with elaborate caution. Neither prosecution nor defense was taking any chance on having a juror who might have the least bias.

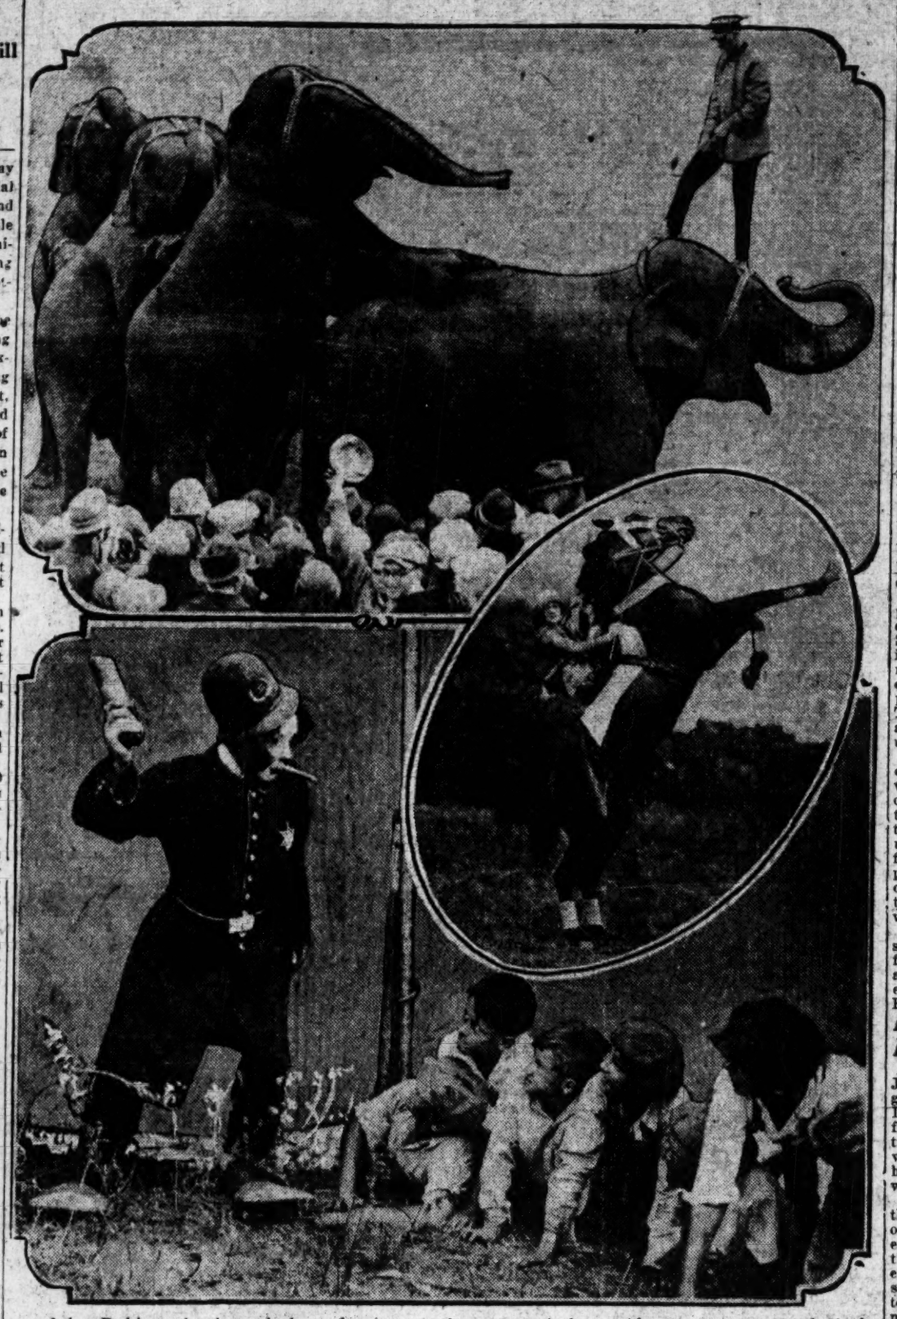

Any time Judge Barnhill did not believe a prospective juror's opinion would hinder him in the proper discharge of his duty, he was promptly dismissed by a peremptory challenge.

STRIKERS PREPARE TO PARADE.

Marion, N. C., September 1.—(AP)—Despite the anti-parade ordinance adopted by the Marion city council, and the arrest of 79 strikers yesterday on charges growing out of riotous disorders here Friday, Alfred Hoffman, southern organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, tonight said he expected 200 designated officers or representatives of organized labor here tomorrow.

His statement followed a conference of labor leaders. He declined to state the status of the planned Labor Day parade, dismissing this question by saying: "Let the others wait and see what we do. However, there is not going to be any disorder."

John Robinson's circus is here for two performances today. Above are some typical circus scenes. At the top one of the trainers is shown directing a group of trained elephants. In the oval is Miss Madge Fuller, skilled horsewoman, and at the bottom is shown a circus cop on duty.

To sweeten the bitter pill slated for consumption with the opening of school next Monday, Atlanta youngsters today will enjoy one of the major joys of the vacation season. All of which is a roundabout way of saying, "The circus is in town."

This time it's John Robinson's circus, one of the largest and oldest of the peregrinating purveyors of thrills on a large scale. The show will be given twice, at 2 and at 8 o'clock, on the grounds adjacent to the Sears-Roebuck parking lot, on Glen Iris drive, just off Ponce de Leon.

Because of the heavy Labor Day traffic there will be no street parade, but all the features of the usual parade will be offered in the opening pageant, "King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba."

Advance notices are that the program of the show will be entirely different from that offered last year, as a whole list of new acts has been booked. The grounds will be opened an hour before each show time so that patrons may see the large menagerie the circus carries.

Reserved seats may be obtained at Jacobs pharmacy, at Five Points, at the same price as at the gate.

Two New Films Open at Midnight

At the Paramount

"THE DANCE OF LIFE," a Paramount all-talking adaptation of the stage play, Burlesque with Hal Skelly and Nancy Carroll. Paramount sound news also on the program.

The inexplicable faithfulness of a wife to a no-good bum of a husband who deserts her when he is elevated through her own efforts from the obscurity and sordidness of a small-time burlesque company to stardom on Broadway, is woven with more than usual cinematic intelligence into a corking good yarn in "The Dance of Life," which opened at midnight Sunday at the Paramount.

Hal Skelly, trick hoofer and fall man of the footlights, does a splendid job as the husband in a role that calls for occasionally worthwhile drama, and certainty one could not summon better entertainment than when he is engaged in his own particular forte, the comedy-dance.

The putty-nosed leading man also presents an appealing little song, "True-Blue Lou," which he does mostly and very wisely in "talk" instead of hazarding the melody with an untrained voice. So much cannot be said of Miss Carroll, whom the producers again have chosen to deliver one of her very, very sad imitations of song-singing.

Married people especially will find this picture attractive since it incorporates to an accentuated degree pretty much the problems and emotions wedded bliss undergoes at one time or another. —ELMO HAMBY.

At the Capitol

"OUR MODERN MAIDENS," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer companion picture to "Our Dancing Daughters," with Joan Crawford, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Rod La Rocque, Anita Page and Josephine Dunn. Fox Movietone News includes scenes of the take-off of the aerial armada in the First All-Georgia Air Tour, sponsored by The Constitution.

Designed to follow in one-two fashion that recent idealistic box-office wow, "Our Dancing Daughters," the success of which left even the producers cold with astonishment and surprise, "Our Modern Maidens" lacks a great deal of the speed and sparkle of its predecessor, but it still is plenty fast enough to occasion liberal use of the S. R. O. sign at Loew's Capitol, where it was pressed into service for the first performance at midnight Sunday.

Riding full high on the always current opinion that modern youth is wilder and more immoral than they were the year before, the film goes into detail with the case of a leader of the moderns, Billie Brown, who is shown up as a not-so-smart customer, after all, while a more unsophisticated and unwise lass annexes Billie's boy friend for that most-famous battle-to-the-finish, marriage.

Made expressly for youth and since youth's first and only question as to its merit is, "Is it hot?" the answer is inevitably yes—yes meaning in this instance the usual midnight parties, wild auto-riding, liberal necking, indiscreet affection tand that always ecstatic scene wherein the man of the world corners the peppy-but-really-nice maid in his mountain cabin and hisses rather attractively the modern version of "Ha! my proud beauty, you have trifled with me long enough!"

The picture proves its delightful and indubitable modernity by marrying its heroine to this monster in sheik's clothing, while the snappy young collegian gets the sweet country gal. —ELMO HAMBY.

DR. BUTLER WARNS AGAINST TARIFF TO INJURE WORLD

Southampton, N. Y., September 1.—(AP)—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, today voiced a warning to congress that passage of an unwise tariff law would seriously affect world prosperity.

His warning arose from a discussion at the Parrish Art institute of the change in man's interest from politics to economics and from liberty to wealth in the last generation.

"It is perfectly possible for congress in enacting new tariff legislation to advance or set back the prosperity and peace of the world," he said. The time long since has gone by when tariff legislation was purely a domestic matter, he added.

ADDITIONAL SPORTS

HUGHES WINS MEDAL OF CITY

Amateur Champ Downs Hudson by One Stroke in Play-Off.

Julius Hughes, newly crowned city amateur golf champion and Druid Hills Club champion, added another trophy to his collection Sunday afternoon over the East Lake course when he defeated Scott Hudson, Jr., East Lake player, one up on the eighteenth green with a medal score of 82 against Hudson's 83.

Hughes and Hudson qualified Wednesday over the East Lake course with a 72 each for medalist in the tournament. It was decided to play off the tie Sunday.

Both Hughes and Hudson have played ten rounds of 18 holes each during the past week and their scores Sunday were not as impressive as during the tournament. Their drives in many instances lacked the power to carry the usual distance and the approach shots were not so accurate. They both were over-golfed and let up after the tournament was over Saturday afternoon.

Hughes had a four-stroke advantage on the first nine holes, with a 39, while Hudson had a 43. On the second nine Hughes lost two strokes on the tenth, when his drive landed on the far side of the lake, in an almost unplayable lie. He played the next five holes in five each, while Hudson picked up two strokes on the eleventh, one on the twelfth and halved the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth with Hughes.

Hudson lost another stroke on the sixteenth, which Hughes played in par figures, the seventeenth was halved and Hughes won the match on the eighteenth with a par three, while Hudson took a four.

Roberts, Yates End All Square.

W. W. Roberts and Charlie Yates, Jr., ended all square on the eighteenth green Sunday afternoon over the East Lake course in the championship flight of the Texas Oil Company trophy. It was decided that the match will be played again over eighteen holes during the latter part of the week.

Yates had a decided advantage on the first nine holes and was three up on Roberts. On the second nine, Roberts played much better golf and cut the lead down until the match was even on the sixteenth. Yates won the seventeenth and Roberts came back to win the eighteenth and square the match. Roberts had a 38, two over par, on the back nine.

Tom Shropshire Downs Lyne.

Tom Shropshire defeated John Lyne, 5-4, Sunday afternoon on the Capital City course in the semi-finals of the first annual junior club championship tournament. Shropshire will meet Charles Dannals, Jr., in the finals during the early part of the week, it was announced Sunday.

West End Players Busy.

West End golfers put in a busy week-end and 16 matches in the annual club championship tournament were finished. Several other first-round matches are scheduled to be completed today and second-round matches will be played during the remainder of the week.

In the first flight, J. I. Cook defeated A. C. Spinks, 3-2; A. F. Lively defeated T. C. Burne, 4-3; J. A. Henderson defeated B. H. Hawkins, by default; T. E. Tolleson defeated Dr. R. D. Robinson by default and R. W. Garrison defeated Larry Caudill by default.

N. Ga. Is Led By West End

West End, with a 5-to-3 victory over Ansley Park on the West End course Sunday afternoon, went into the lead of the North Georgia Golf league, with Marietta and Ansley Park tied for second place.

L. R. Hunter and J. I. Cook, of West End, won two points from J. Welch and Jerude Jones, of Ansley Park.

Gene Cook and Johnny Adamson won three points from Muggsy Smith and R. L. Nichols, of Ansley Park.

Phil L'Engle and Nowell won the only three points for Ansley Park with a victory over Max Pittard and A. F. Lively, of the West End team.

T. E. Tolleson and A. J. Cochran played a close and exciting match with J. Green and Dr. Dan Sage, of Ansley Park, which ended all square on the eighteenth green.

Germany Wins, 79-66

Paris, September 1.—(AP)—Germany defeated France, 79 points to 66, in a track and field event in Colombes stadium today. Germany won 9 of the 15 first places. The 800-meter run saw the defeat of both Dr. Otto Peltzer and Sera Martin, respectively German and French record-holders, by the youthful Alsatian, Keller, in 1 minute 55 1-5 seconds.

Jones Completely Dominates Amateur

Atlantan Has Proved His Mastery of Tricky Del Monte Layout, Says Getty.

By Frank Getty,
United News Sports Editor.

Pebble Beach, Calif., September 1.—The last practice putt has gone down, and 140 of the world's best amateur golfers are ready for the stern test of the national championship.

Pebble Beach's far-flung fairways were deserted at sunset, left to the querulous white gulls swooping along the rocky shores of the Pacific. The most picturesque course ever tramped in a national championship is groomed and ready for the morrow's campaigns.

The first of two 18-hole qualifying rounds starts at 8:30 a. m. Monday.

Standing astride the golfing scene like a young colossus is the chunky figure of the defending champion, Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., of Atlanta. Seldom has Bobby so completely dominated the situation on the eve of a tournament.

Champions of Great Britain and Canada are here, as well as a great golfing host including mighty men of yore and youngsters eager to carve their medal of fame through the green fields of Pebble Beach, but the prowess of the Atlantan and the virtual impossibility of dethroning him was on everyone's lips.

OVERWHELMING FEAT.

Coming to the far west and to a golf course famed for its difficulties, Bob Jones, in a week of practice play, has established himself a more overwhelming favorite than ever.

Who has a chance to beat him? No one and everyone. For the vagaries of golf are manifold, and Pebble Beach is just the course to provide an opportunity for some capable match player who may suddenly "get hot" when pitted against the champion over the 18-hole route. The course over which the champion will contend this week is one that proved devastating to the medal scores of most of the contestants. Bob Jones alone has had it licked. But match play is another story, and the seaside crags of Pebble Beach are made for the hole by hole competition which comprises the amateur test.

The possibility of some virtually unknown youngster putting out the titleholder during one of the first two rounds of 18-hole match play is uppermost in the minds of Jones' coterie even if the majority of golf enthusiasts at the scene of championship are inclined to overlook it.

UNKNOWN FLASHES.

Take for example the case of Gib Dunlop of Los Angeles, who never has figured in a national tournament. This 22-year-old youngster, overlooked in the excitement attendant upon Bobby's indifferent 76 Saturday, smacked around the championship course in 70, 2 under par. If he had been drawn against the titleholder at that time, there would be a new champion crowned next Saturday.

But that is golf. Dunlop's card was the best of the last minute efforts at Pebble Beach. It follsw:

Dunlop, out .....454 324 355—35
in .....432 554 534—35

Barring the possibility of an upset at 18 holes, however, opinion of the majority is that Jones will capture his fifth national amateur championship is exceedingly sound. For one thing, the Atlantan is in fine shape physically, with nothing to worry him, and with the knowledge that he can master the intricacies of Pebble Beach virtually at will. Bob's father and mother and his wife are here with him.

Great Britain has sent her champion, Cyril Tolley, together with Lord Charles Hope, Euctace Storey and T. A. Burne, of St. Andrews, in quest of the American title, but none of the little group from overseas has shown anything resembling good golf in practice.

Eddie Held and Ross Somerville, new and dethroned champs of Canada, have done nothing startling at Pebble Beach during the past week. Jack Westland, French open amateur champ, has not put in an appearance.

Goodman's Golf Status Cleared

Pebble Beach, Cal., September 1.—(AP)—Although no official announcement was forthcoming from the United States Golf Association, it was definitely learned today that Johnny Goodman, of Omaha, Neb., one of the middle west's star contenders, has had his amateur status cleared and will start play tomorrow in the national amateur championship at Pebble Beach.

Issue arose over Goodman's status after the withdrawal of Johnny Dawson, Chicago star, because of his connection with a sporting goods firm in New York. Goodman was employed in Omaha by the same firm for a time, but has since severed that connection.

It is understood the young Nebraskan satisfied the United States Golf Association officials not only that his status is now clear but that his former business connection was not such as to involve capitalizing his golf skill in the sense intended by the amateur rule.

RICE SELECTS BOB TO WIN

Voight. But Jones will have to slip back from the dizzy pace he has been setting and perhaps this dizzy pace has not been the best thing for his game. If Jones were not an exception to most rules, I should say that his last four rounds, played under par, should be a handicap for it is impossible in golf to keep a razor edge day after day.

GREATEST INTEREST.

It is quite likely tomorrow, on the first qualifying day, that from 7,000 to 10,000 spectators will swarm all over Monterey peninsula. They are coming in by trains, by buses, by airplanes and by motors, and where they will find camping spots in this spectacular resort is beyond any one's guess. If they stay over they will be nesting like pigeons in the spreading growth of the cypress trees.

California has taken this championship to heart and the general interest is the keenest I have ever seen. In addition to an army of marshalls they have drawn white chalk marks well in front of every green where the crowds will be held at bay. There isn't any too much gallery room here where the Pacific comes charging in and where towering cliffs and deep drops form a heavy hazard for the spectator as well as for the player. There isn't an open spot left in Del-Monte. Tents have been put up and these are now being filled. This could only happen in the knowledge that ideal weather will continue where the worst that might break is a fog. And if fogs and winds should blow up on Monday and Tuesday there will be a story to tell of melancholy, sorrow and respair. For weather conditions to date have been ideal with little wind and no fogs. No climate could hope to continue with any such run of perfection and fogs out here are at least not total strangers at this time of the year.

EVANS UNDER WEATHER.

It will be time enough later on to take up the match play struggle for the championship. The main point now that interests every player here is qualifying where about 80 per cent must fail. Among those with the better chance to make the championship grade are Bobby Jones, Von Elm, Voight, Finlay, Jimmy Johnston, Ouimet, McHugh, Tolley, Moe, Dolh, Homans, Storey, Wright Willing, Knepper and Coleman. Chick Evans has been under the weather. Jack Neville, California champion, has been struggling the last few days. Young Seaver is a stout possibility. But all of these must stay away from the ocean where no niblick has yet been manufactured large enough to save lost strokes.

Spicer Is Defeated In Medal Play-Off

Memphis, Tenn., September 1.—(AP)—Darden Hampton, of Chattanooga, won the title of medalist of the Tennessee state golf tournament, which ended yesterday, by defeating Emmett Spicer, tournament winner, 71 to 75, in a play-off today of a tie for low qualifying score.

Hampton and Spicer tied with 73's for low score honors in the qualifying round and a play-off was decided upon.

Feds Rally To Win From All-Stars, 6-5

Tying the score at 5-5 with a short spurt in the last half of the ninth inning, the Commodore Feds came back in their section of the tenth frame to score another run and take a 6-5 decision from Tubby Walton's "Home-Cooked" All-Stars on the Feds home diamond.

The Waltonites went into the lead at the second inning with a single tally, only to see the Feds score four in their half. The All-Stars kept pecking away and regained the van in the seventh, but the Feds came back again to tie and then win.

Bobby's Embonpoint Secret of Success

An editorial, commending Bob Jones for refusal of a motion picture contract, appeared recently in The Chicago Tribune. The editorial, in humorous vein, points out the amazing mental balance of Jones and explains it. The entire editorial follows:

HOW BOBBY JONES GOT THAT WAY

Young Mr. Jones, the Atlanta lawyer, has refused the offer of $50,000 for two weeks' work in the talkies. Mr. Jones said he didn't think the movie magnates would have made the offer to any other Atlanta attorney of his acquaintance and from that fact he drew the conclusion that it was not his speaking voice, his figure, his gifts for mimicry, his manly beauty or even his legal learning which prompted the proposal, but rather his renown as a golfer.

Mr. Jones' mental balance is unusual, particularly in a champion. Mr. Dempsey knew no reason for staying out of the movies and neither did Messrs. Grange and Carpentier. Mr. Tilden could not resist the temptation to appear before his public in stock. The clew to Mr. Jones' greater balance is to be found in any of his more recent photographs. They show that Mr. Jones is no Greek god. He has a substantial stomach. Mr. Jones puts his championships under his belt.

Mr. Jones is unique among champions for his common sense and his figure. To some minds that may appear to be a mere coincidence. We think not. Mr. Jones, we suspect, is a champion because he is plump. The game at which he excels is much less an athletic exercise than a discipline. It calls and makes for sober judgment, imperturbability, nervous equipoise and a minimum of imagination. When Mr. Jones was thinner he was not as good a golfer as he is today though he was a better athlete. Mr. Jones' star as a golfer has been climbing as his claims to fitness as an athlete have declined.

Golf, it may be inferred, is a fat man's game. It is the only game at which fat men may hope to excel. "Let me have men about me that are fat" might well be inscribed over the door of every golf club in the land.

STRIB MEETS COOK TONIGHT

Bout at Macon Probably Last Before Georgian Begins European Tour.

Atlanta fight fans today are planning a trip to Macon tonight to witness the Young Stribling-George Cook fight to be staged at the municipal auditorium of that city. The first bout will start at 8:30 o'clock.

This bout, in which Stribling meets one of his most formidable opponents since the Sharkey fight at Miami, is expected to attract one of the largest crowds ever to attend a fight in the state.

Cook, who holds the European heavyweight championship, is rated among the best heavies in this country and should make things hot for the Georgian. He is a real slugger and a tough customer for anyone in the ring. It should be one of the best heavyweight scraps held anywhere this year.

BARRY TO REFEREE.

Dave Barry, the referee who made the long count in the Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight championship fight at Chicago, will be the third man in the ring tonight.

Backing his card is an impressive list of preliminaries. In the semi-windup Cal Hubbard, all-American football star and baseball umpire, will meet Cracker Jack Spike Webb. This bout in itself will rate with the best for action.

Tonight's bout will probably be the last for Stribling before he invades Europe for a series of fights planned by Jeff Dickson, European promoter who has signed the Georgian for the fights abroad.

EUROPEAN TERMS.

The terms accepted by the Striblings for the bouts in England and France are contained in the following letter made public by "Pa" Stribling.

"Dear Mr. Stribling:

"I could guarantee Young Stribling three contests in London and Paris on the following plans:

"Twelve rounds, heavyweight, opponents to be named by me, the three contests to take place within nine weeks. First contest $7,000 guarantee, 25 per cent of gross gate, less government tax; I pay the income tax in your purse in England and France. Six thousand second contest under same conditions as first contest and $7,000 third contest, same conditions as second contest.

"I will pay you $1,000 towards transportation on signing of contracts, pay all training and hotel expenses for two up until the first contest.

MORE FIGHTS.

"The service of Stribling in Europe is exclusively for me on this tour but he will be free to accept contests in Germany, Italy and Spain under my directions and from any contest Stribling may accept after my three contests, I am to receive 10 per cent to go towards repaying me his $1,000 for expenses and hotel and training for his first contest for me.

"I can use Stribling in the month of November and December. If you want to know anything about working for me drop in on Joe Jacobs and Billy McCarney and ask them. In the Genaro contest his percentage brought him $2,300 more than his guarantee. In other words he received $10,000 when he defended his title in front of Pladner and he is a flyweight, so you can guess what a heavyweight can do over here.

"Thanking you in advance for an early reply, I beg to remain,

"Sincerely yours,

"JEFF DICKSON.

"P. S.—I have rented the Royal Albert Hall in London for three years and my first show is on October 3.

"J. D."

East Favored In Net Play

Forest Hills, L. I., September 1.—(United News.)—Although advance done pointed to an overwhelming victory for the west, the east will enter the final day of play in the east-west tennis matches here tomorrow with a lead of three victories to one.

The west cannot afford to lose more than one match tomorrow if it is to repeat its triumph of 1928, and must make a clean sweep of the five remaining contests if it would duplicate its 6-to-3 margin of last year.

Refusal of Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter to play for the east this year was considered a death blow to hopes of a victory for this section, but in three singles and one doubles match played yesterday, only one victory was counted for the west.

Legien, Ryan Win Bird Race

J. H. Legien, veteran member of the Atlanta Homing Pigeon Club, was declared winner Sunday in the third race of the club's "young-bird series." John L. Ryan, also an old-timer, took second and third places, thus duplicating his last week's performances in the 75-mile race.

The race was from Cordele, Ga., 135 miles, to Atlanta, about 100 young pigeons being released by Cain, of Cordele, special liberator, at 6 o'clock, a. m., Atlanta time, the first three birds being clocked in at their home lofts in 3 hours 17 minutes, 3 hours 19 minutes and 3 hours 21 minutes respectively, averaging around 45 miles per hour, this being the fastest young bird race ever flown by the club for distances over 100 miles.

Positions and yards per minute flown follow:

Legien, first	1,141 yds.	per minute.
Ryan, second	1,125 yds.	per minute.
Ryan, third	1,124 yds.	per minute.
Legein, fourth	1,099 yds.	per minute.
Stoddard, fifth	1,098 yds.	per minute.
Capitol View, sixth	1,090 yds.	per minute.
Cap. View, seventh	1,081 yds.	per minute.
Stoddard, eighth	1,071 yds.	per minute.
Tucker, ninth	1,069 yds.	per minute.
Crawford, tenth	1,060 yds.	per minute.
Cole, eleventh	872 yds.	per minute.

Ed Hamm to Seek Berth on Golden Tornado; Jones Starts Defense of Amateur Today

GREAT JUMPER IN GOOD SHAPE FOR GRIDIRON

Star To Be Given Chance, May Prove Asset to Team.

By Ralph McGill.

Ed Hamm, Georgia Tech's world's champion broad jumper, will be one of the 50 football candidates who report to Coaches Alexander, Miles and Fincher this afternoon at the Rose Bowl Memorial field.

Hamm has nursed a desire to play football for years. It so happened that he was, and is, the greatest jumper in the world. Coaches shooed him from the gridiron to the jumping pit and Hamm went on leaping for new records and wanting to play football.

This is his senior year and he is determined to play football. Coach Bill Alexander was inclined to think that Hamm was not serious about football and also was a bit dubious about letting the champion jumper risk his tendons in football. Not that there was any likelihood of injury, but because football would develop a set of muscles not used in jumping and might, thereby, jeopardize his chances in that field of endeavor.

IN GOOD SHAPE.

Hamm, however, is insistent. "I am in good shape," he said yesterday, "and want to try football."

Bill Fincher, the Iron Duke in charge of the line, thinks Hamm would be of value to the team if it should develop that he has football "sense," that intangible something which, for want of a better phrase, must be called football instinct. He is a superb athlete and might develop into a real asset.

At any rate, he promises to be on hand this afternoon when the Yellow Jackets report and see if he will be given a chance to play football in his last year at college.

COACHES READY.

Mike Miles, backfield coach, will be present this afternoon, as will Mike Chambers, trainer. Miles was one of the backfield stars at Princeton last season, and replaces Don Miller on the Tech coaching staff. Chambers comes to Tech from Ohio State.

Tech's backfield candidates have already absorbed Miller's coaching system. Addition of Miles' ideas on backfield play will augment their knowledge and should produce an effective brand of offensive and defensive play. Miles was one of the greatest defensive backs in the east last fall. He was especially fine at diagnosing and breaking up forward pass plays. His insructions in this department will tighten up the Jacket defenses. They were not exactly weak against aerial attacks last fall, but all the damage done to them was accomplished through the air.

The Man at the Flats took an automobile drive yesterday afternoon, reduced his rations and got all set to start the 1929 Jackets off on what is expected to be one of the hardest seasons a Tech team has had in years.

TOUGH SCHEDULE.

It is the only Southern Conference team with eight conference games. Three others have seven games to play. Other members of the conference trail with five and six. Tech's schedule is tough from the start, when it meets the Mississippi Aggies. It grows increasingly difficult. Notre Dame is the ninth game on the schedule. Hence it comes about that The Man at the Flats must play eight of the leading conference teams and a great intersectional contest with six stars missing from the 1928 national champions.

The Man at the Flats plans to start the Jackets off this week with a little light work like setting up exercises, going down under punts and passes and some light signal drill.

"I think that will be enough," he chuckled yesterday afternoon.

There is really nothing much more exhaustive than racing down under punts and passes. They leave the candidate limp unless he is in good physical condition. When some rapid calisthentics are added the candidate either gets rapidly better or fades from the picture.

The Jackets will scrimmage in the third week. They will be worked in some blocking and tackling the second week.

Following are the men who have been summoned for practice this afternoon:

Centers: Rusk (captain), Farmer, Muse, Cain.

Guards: Brooks, Westbrook, Law, Morton, Edwards, Ezell, Yank McKee, Merry, North, Little, Wings, McKee.

Tackles: Maree, Watkins, Williams, Holt, Sloan, Fincher, Warner, McKinney.

Right Halves: Thomason, Barron, Strickland.

Fullbacks: Fitzegrald, Huntsinger, Weatherford, Luna, Hauck.

First Guard Platoon Wins

Rallying in the closing chukkers to overcome a three-goal lead, the first platoon polo team of the Governor's Horse Guard defeated the second platoon at Piedmont park Sunday afternoon. The score was 5 to 4.

The game was hard fought from the start. The second platoon, which has won the last several games between the two, scored one goal in the opening chukker and two in the second. The first platoon came back in the second to tie the count at 3-all, both made one in the third and in the final period the winners pushed one through. Kendrick scoring.

Williamson and Graham were best for the winning team while Royer and Foster were best for the losers. The teams were composed of members of the Horse Guard reserve polo squad.

Those who speculate on (not necessarily "in") football futures are insistent on knowing instantly all about the current campaign. The form sheet every season is revised from week to week, as anticipated strength in players is decreased or increased by injuries, scholastic failures, unexpected improvement or unanticipated precision in play.

That does not keep the locker room gang from plunging boldly into the matter of which team will survive. They can tell you right now, off hand, the result of every Conference game. All they need is a schedule.

No team's chances can be considered apart from its schedule. Strength in a football team is a relative thing. The rating as they go to the post in the popular mind finds Alabama, Tennessee, Florida, Clemson, Georgia Tech, North Carolina, Kentucky, Tulane and Georgia in the preferred list.

Just why they put Tech and Georgia up in there is a mystery to me. Look at the schedules played by the two Cracker state representatives; how can they get through?

On the data at hand I would rate the first four as Alabama, Tennessee, Clemson and Florida, in order named, with the dear old Crimson Tide holding a decided edge. However, that was my hunch in two other seasons when the Tide failed to come in. Do not take it seriously—yet.

At Hard Labor.

Hard work and plenty of the same is the program at Tech's new Rose Bowl Memorial stadium this afternoon. Some fifty young men, tanned by life in the great outdoors, will meet Coach W. A. Alexander for the first workout of the season, and before dark the first charley horse of the 1929 campaign will have neighed.

"Might as well get in shape right now," Coach Alexander said yesterday. "We will need all the condition in America to get through this year in one piece."

The new stadium is a quarter of a mile from the team quarters on Grant field. That will enforce light exercise before and after practice. The old order of "twice around the track" will be heard no more.

Bobby's Fame.

His name is on every lip—and on many lips that speak a foreign tongue. Bobby Jones is our only international athletic hero.

And yet—one marvels at the limitations of fame. I have at hand a clipping from the Portland (Ore.) News that shows that whereas Bobby Jones' fame is everywhere, details concerning his origin are lacking.

The Portland News says:

"It is not without the bounds of possibilities that one of the Portland golfers will come home with the itle.

"Bobby Jones, THE FLORIDA GOLF WONDER, cannot hold on forever, etc."

The clipping was sent in by J. B. Godfrey, Portland insurance agent and former Atlantan, who adds this comment:

Inclosed you will find editorial which has reference to Bobby Jones and golf at Del Monte. The writer was in Miami and other points in Florida during 1925, 1926 and 1927 and was aware of the fact that some forty-odd thousand people went from Atlanta to Miami, but did not know that Florida had annexed Peachtree street.—Sincerely, J. B. Godfrey.

The faux pas, of course, is merely an example of the provincialism of Portland. No doubt the Portland sports writer imagines that Florida and Georgia are adjoining towns.

And most of us are equally provincial and imagine that Portland is merely an afternoon motor run from San Francisco instead of a long sleeper jump.

After All.

Just how important the Yale game seems to the people of Athens is expressed in a word from a prominent citizen. He said:

"We are sitting up nights figuring how to take care of the crowd and the automobiles, how to feed the visitors and house the overnight guests and get them comfortably into and out of the stadium.

"We know that if we make a success of handling the crowd that comes to the Yale game, 'THE TECH GAME IN DECEMBER WILL DRAW 40,000 people."

So, after all, it is the old-time rival that still is the hole card, the big idea over there. Nothing can dim the color of a Tech-Georgia game; all other contests in the neighborhood run second.

JACKET RULE DUE TO FALL, COACHES THINK

Mentors Express Opinions on 1929 Race in Southern Conference.

By Eddie Brietz,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

A Southern Conference championship flag will fly this year either at Tuscaloosa, Ala., or Gainesville, Fla.; Georgia Tech is riding to a fall and with the most evenly matched field in the history of the conference. Only a miracle team can hope to go through the season undefeated.

These predictions and another—that the most colorful and exciting campaign in ten years lies just ahead for the south—were made Sunday by coaches who today begin oiling their machines for the 1929 Dixie grid derby.

More strong teams, bigger and harder games, well-arranged schedules and a more spectacular style of play will result in the hardest fought championship grind since the conference was formed, in the opinion of 12 head coaches who were polled by the Associated Press. Eleven of the mentors failed to answer.

Other high spots in the replies follow:

The air is black with dark horses. Anything can happen and probably will happen.

There will be a big change in offensive tactics.

At this stage only three or four teams can be definitely counted out.

Major Bob Neyland, whose Tennessee Vols are ranked in every coach's "first four," comes right out in meeting to forecast that Alabama and Florida will battle it out for the title.

Concerning Tennessee, the major refuses to get off the mourners' bench and sorrowfully asserts McEver, Hackman and company probably will lose three of their conference games.

"The Crimson Tide is due for a great comeback," he says, "and Georgia Tech is slipping. Auburn may prove to be the surprise team with Vanderbilt and Ole Miss finishing strong."

Other coaches hold the same view to a certain extent, but Major Neyland is the only one who can not figure Georgia Tech very much in the running again.

Coach Bierman, of Tulane, for instance, thinks the Alabama-Tech game will just about decide the championship although he hastens to add that both Florida and Tennessee are capable of spilling plenty of beans and may step in and spoil somebody's playhouse for them any old time.

Another shrewd observer who can look ahead and see the Golden Tornado in the finals is George Bohler, of Auburn. However, he pits Florida instead of Alabama against the Jackets in the final reckoning. Bohler looks for changes in offensive tactics all along the front due to the new fumble rule.

TENNESSEE LIKED.

Everybody seems to like Tennessee except Major Neyland. Bill Raftery, famous for turning out fast, tricky teams at V. M. I., sees the Vols in a dead heat with Georgia Tech and Florida, with Alabama always dangerous and ready to step in for honors the moment one of the first three shows signs of faltering.

Russ Cohen, Louisiana State's youthful mentor, says Alabama can march straight to a championship if Wallace Wade is successful in developing a good forward passer. With more good teams in the field than ever, Cohen predicts a season liberally sprinkled with upsets.

The astute Billy Laval, of South Carolina, warns against dark horses, of which he says the woods are full; Dan McGugin, directing general of the Vanderbilt Commodores, favors Georgia Tech to repeat, although he doubts if the Tornado will escape defeat, and Harry Mehre, brilliant young coach of the Georgia Bulldogs, lists Tech and Alabama first, with Tennessee and Florida pressing hard all year.

Virginia, under Earl Abell, may step out and surprise the works, says H. C. (Curly) Byrd, veteran Maryland coach.

FRISKY SOPHOMORES.

Georgia's frisky sophomore team will be the surprise outfit, in the opinion of Chuck Collins, North Carolina, with Duke and South Carolina standing out in the north. Collins' old rival, Gus Tebell, of North Carolina State, sees Clemson, North Carolina, Duke and Maryland setting the pace in the northern end, with Alabama and Tennessee having the edge in the south. Both Carolina coaches say the southern teams will finish the season on top.

Coach Bill Alexander, whose Tech team won the title last year, would not predict a possible winner. He said the field is so evenly matched that not more than two or three teams are out of it.

Y.C.A.A. Teams To Clash Today

Two pennant winners will be decided by the outcome of the games among the amateur teams of the city today. Both are members of the Y-Church Athletic Association and will play to decide the team to enter the championship series starting Saturday.

At Piedmont park, Buckhead Baptist, winner of the first half, and Pattillo Memorial Methodist, who, after a garrison finish, won the right to meet them for the Piedmont league trophy, will battle at 3:30 p. m. This game was scheduled for Piedmont park, but was switched to the Grant park diamond.

GREAT FIELD SEEKS ATLANTA ACE'S CROWN

Two 18-Hole Rounds Will Be Played in Qualifying Rounds.

By Alan J. Gould,
Associated Press Sports Editor.

Pebble Peach, Cal., September 1.—(AP)—The royal and ancient game that knew its alibis in merry old England long before there was any rush to California for gold has shifted its main battleground to this modern Eldorado for the first time—but there is no change in the star role. Bobby Jones, like the old pioneers, has come west to conquer with spade mashie and putter where the old-timers used pick and shovel.

The great Georgian starts tomorrow the defense of the National Amateur golf championship against a handpicked field of the world's foremost players. He has dominated all the preliminaries to the most widely heralded title tournament the game has ever known and if he fails to do the same thing in the more serious business of championship competition the reverberating echoes will be heard as loud in New York and Atlanta as they will be up and down the Pacific slope.

Golf has seldom, if ever, had a more picturesque setting for one of its principal affairs than the seaside, windblown links of Pebble Beach, whose hazards are just as dangerous as they look.

Neither has the game ever had a more commanding figure than Shotmaker Jones, who will start as almost an even favorite against a field of 140 of the best amateurs of the United States, Great Britiain and Canada.

36 HOLES QUALIFYING.

The opening skirmish of Pebble Beach tomorrow consists of 18 holes, medal play, for the entire field. Another 18 will be played Tuesday to complete the 36-hole qualifying test and determine the 32 survivors for match play, beginning Wednesday with two 18-hole rounds and proceeding thereafter in 36-hole matches until the finals on Saturday.

Only eight can survive Wednesday's strife.

Despite the rigors of this skilfully trapped and naturally hazardous layout, it is expected that scores of 156 will be needed to qualify for the man-to-man battles later in the week.

JONES TOPS FIELD.

Jones has turned in by far the best performance in practice. His main effort being a spectacular 67 on Friday that clipped five strokes from par and three shots from his own previous low mark for the course. No other player has broken 70, and the prospect is that even the stars will have their troubles from the outset.

The qualifying struggle, in which more than 100 must be weeded out will offer no chance for anyone to take it easy.

Comparative unknowns have been uncorking some dazzling play in practice. The far west has its biggest delegation in history on hand for this event, with California alone contributing more than 50 to the field, so that it will be necessary for the favorites to bear down from start to finish.

GREAT FIELD.

Jones faces old as well as a number of up and coming rivals in the international galaxy of contenders of the more seasoned talent, yet comparatively young veterans of many brilliant campaigns. These are George Von Elm of Detroit, George Voight and Jess Sweetser of New York, all evidently in fine form. Representing an even older guard, there are Chick Evans of Chicago, Francis Ouimet of Boston and Chandler Egan of Medford, Ore., who won the Amateur crowns in 1904 and 1905 and helped design the difficulties of Pebble Beach.

Evans, master of the iron and its control on a course where the main thing is to keep to the line, has his game tuned for a comeback. Two of the game's mightiest wallopers, Cyril Tolley, the British champion, and Phillips Finlay of Redlands, Cal., former Harvard star, will be troublesome if they can reduce their streaks of wildness to a minimum.

WESTERN HOPES.

In the far western brigade, which hopes to do something to celebrate the first title tournament ever held out here, chief hopes are pinned on Dr. O. F. Willing, Frank Dolp and Done Moe, all of Portland, Oreg., and the latter now holder of the Western Amateur title; Bob Stein, of Seattle, former Western champion; Johnny McHugh of San Francisco, and Jack Neville of Del Monte, the present California champion.

Canada's champion happens to be a New Yorker, Eddie Held, who is also one of the east's main threats, but the Dominion has two star entries in Ross Somerville and Don Carrick.

CRAX, BEARS IN PAIR TODAY

Morning Game Will Start at 10 O'Clock; Afternoon at 3 O'Clock.

Atlanta and Mobile will play two games of baseball today, one at 10 o'clock this morning and another at 3 o'clock this afternoon, as a feature of the annual Labor Day celebration in the city to add to the many other activities.

It will be the first time in many years that Atlanta baseball fans have had an opportunity to witness baseball games on Labor Day and the two games were due to all of Mobile's home games being transferred to visiting clubs' home grounds. Mobile will have the last batting opportunity in each game, as they are the home club.

The Crackers are one and one-half games behind Memphis in fourth place and a winning streak during the week will give them a fine opportunity to finish the season in the first division.

While Atlanta and Mobile are battling away on Spiller field, Memphis and Little Rock will be fighting it out in Arkansas. Birmingham and New Orleans will play a two-game series in New Orleans and Chattanooga will be entertaining the Vols.

Following today's schedule, Atlanta will move on to New Orleans for a two-game series and end the week in Birmingham with a four-game series. Nashville will play at Little Rock and Memphis the remainder of the week.

Although Manager Wilbur Good has not announced his hurlers for the two games, it is very likely that Joe Kiefer and Will Moore will draw the assignments.

Hasty Pitches Two-Hit Game

Bob Hasty, Barons' slab ace, pitched a two-hit game against the Pelicans Sunday. The Barons won, 7 to 1.

Heavy hitting prevailed in the Cincinnati-Pittsburgh game Sunday, when the two teams batted out 33 hits for a total of 45 bases.

Holloway, veteran Cleveland hurler, duplicated Hasty's feat in Chicago when he shut out the White Sox, 5 to 0. He allowed just two singles.

Ruth added another four-base hit to his collection in the Yankee-Senator game with his 40th of the season. Tony Lazzeri poled two homers.

Chuck Klein, young sensation of the Philadelphia Nationals, hit his 38th circuit clout of the season and leads the National league in home runs.

Labor Day Offers Varied Sport Card

Tech and Oglethorpe Start Work; Two Games With Mobile at Spiller's.

Labor Day is here and Atlanta fans have any number of sporting events from which to select today's entertainment.

Georgia Tech and Oglethorpe will start the annual football practice season this afternoon, with lectures, issuance of uniforms and brief limbering-up exercises.

Atlanta and Mobile will play a morning and afternoon game of baseball, something new for Atlanta on Labor Day. The games were made possible here due to transfer of all home games in Mobile to the visiting park.

Automobile and motorcycle racing, with 14 events on the program at Lakewood park, await lovers of the speedway.

Amateur baseball has two pennants to be decided at Piedmont park, when the Buckhead Baptists and Patillo Memorial and Boethian and Northwest Atlanta teams meet at 3:30 o'clock on the two city diamonds.

For the golfers, the three city municipal courses are ready for a record-breaking crowd.

Club golfers have private parties all their own. West End, Ansley Park, and Forrest Hills, have club championship tournaments in progress, and East Lake, Capital City, Druid Hills and Ingleside will stage ball sweepstakes tournaments.

Pick your favorite sport and enjoy the day, for it is nearly three months before Thanksgiving, the next holiday, rolls around.

Baker Sought For Bout Here

Sergeant Sammy Baker, formerly of New York, who has become a well known figure in southern pugilistic circles, has been approached on the subject of fighting Ted Goodrich in Atlanta, announcement to that effect was made by Eddie Hanlon.

Hanlon wired Baker Saturday a good offer to fight Goodrich here, and believes he will accept.

Goodrich has won 23 out of his last 25 fights and has been defeated here only once. That defeat was by Jack Britton.

Home Games

Alabama will play two of its home games, with Sewanee and Georgia, in Birmingham, and Kentucky in Montgomery.

WEATHER IDEAL, SAYS EDGREN

By Robert Edgren.

Pebble Beach, Cal., September 1.—Everything is set for the national amateur golf championship, even the weather. Saturday and Sunday a strong northwest wind blew away all trace of the thin fog that has been drifting in from the sea at intervals during the past week. When there is a little high fog on this part of the Pacific coast there's wind, making good scoring weather. There was no wind Friday when Bobby Jones shocked the natives and some of the visiting hunters by shooting a 67 on the Pebble Beach course, where nobody had shot a par 72 until a week ago. Saturday, in a high wind that made this Pebble Beach course something like a Long Island liddo surrounded by hundred-foot cliffs instead of sand beaches, Jones shot an ordinary 75 and at that was good enough to lead the rest of the practicing army. This was Bobby's last practice round. He rested Sunday.

Most of the other golfers rested too, whether they played or not. There were few good scores in the practice today. The blond-headed Los Angeles boy, Everett Seaver, who looks more like a football guard than a fellow content with swatting a little pill around, shot a 74 in spite of a northwest gale that came down over the wooded hills and threatened to blow the balls all over the cliffs and out to sea and Marmel bay. Harrison Johnston shot another 74. Fine scores under the playing conditions. Fred Wright shot the 110-yard seventh hole in one

As the big tournament is about to start interest centers on Bobby Jones even more than it did a week ago. His practice rounds with a 75 high, a 70 that cut one stroke under the best turned in by any other visitor to Pebble Beach, and a 67 that if seems likely no one but a Jones could shoot on this tough seaside course, have given an impression that Bobby holds enough in reserve to go through any opposition with colors flying. Still as George Low always used to say: "Anything can happen in golf."

BRYAN GRANT RETAINS TITLE

By Herb Clark.

Bryan Grant beat Jack Mooney in a tennis match on the courts of the East Lake Club Sunday afternoon.

Many times the two stars have faced each other across a net, and most of those times the line above has appeared in the accounts of the fray.

Bryan flashed across the court Sunday to make an almost impossible get and volleyed deep for point, game, set, match, tournament and possession of the title of champion of Georgia for another year. The scores were 2-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Bryan came closer to dropping the match than he has in many years when Mooney was his opponent.

Jack was on top of his game to take the first set easily and start a murmuring chorus in the gallery. Bryan seemed to be through.

MOONEY TAKES LEAD.

And when Jack went on to take the lead at 4-2 in the second set it was evidently too bad for the "little man." He was decidedly not through, however, and came back strong with an almost perfect net game to run out four straight games and even the match.

Mooney was too steady for his opponent in the third set, and was placing his drives accurately to alter-

Southern League Race Day-by-Day

Birmingham, Memphis and Nashville gained one-half game over the idle Crackers Sunday in the Southern league pennant race with victories over New Orleans, Chattanooga and Little Rock. New Orleans lost to Birmingham and remained in third place, one and one-half games behind Nashville.

The Crackers face the week's schedule eight games behind Birmingham in first place, seven and one-half games behind Nashville in second place, six games behind New Orleans in third place and two games behind Memphis in fourth place.

Southern Conference Teams Buckle Down To Long Grind Today

TECH, GEORGIA, TIDE, 'GATORS RATED HIGH

Two New Coaches Make Debut at Virginia and W. and L.

By United News.

Southern Conference football teams will swing into action this week, the majority of them today, to begin an intensive training period preparatory to tthe 1929 season.

Tech's famous Golden Tornado looms on the horizon again as one of the leading contenders for title honors in Dixie, while other sectors expected to be heard from include Alabama, Florida, Tennessee, Georgia, and possibly Tulane and Vanderbilt.

Only two new gridiron mentors will make their debut in the conference next week. They are Earl C. Abell, former head coach at Colgate, who has succeeded Earle "Greasy" Neale at the helm of the Virginia Cavaliers, and Eugene G. Oberst, former Notre Dame linesman, succeeding J. P. Herron at Washington and Lee.

Both Georgia and Duke universities, the latter of which was taken into the conference last spring, will have fine new stadiums for the 1929 season. The new Georgia athletic plant at Athens will be dedicated on October 12, when the Bulldogs meet Yale. Duke will formally dedicate its new stadium, with a seating capacity of 35,000, on October 5, when opposition will be furnished by the University of Pittsburgh.

LIGHT TECH TEAM.

Coach Bill Alexander will go to work at Georgia Tech with a light team and minus the services of several stars of the Tornado which went to the Pacific coast last year and defeated California for the national title.

Captain Peter Pund, Frank Speer, Raleigh Drennon, Frank Waddey and Kenneth Thrash are gone from the Tornado line, and Bob Randolph and "Father" Lumpkin are lost to the backfield. However, Alexander is far from being down in the mouth about prospects at Tech, for he has a wealth of material with which to work.

Wallace Wade, who developed three conference championship teams at Alabama, has things well in hand at Tuscaloosa, with comparatively few letter men lost from the Crimson Tide by graduation. Chief among the missing are Ellis "Dumpy" Hagler, all-southern guard; Clarke "Babe" Pearce, giant tackle; Skidmore, another tackle, and Earl Smith, captain of the 1928 Tide and star end. Wade has reserve material but it is not expected to measure up to the men lost by graduation.

VOLS IMPROVED.

The University of Tennessee will have a light and fast team this year, with its material generally considered better than that of 1928. Coach Bob Neyland will depend on the "wide open" attack. The "touchdown twins," McEver and Hackman, and Dodd, quarterback, will fill three berths in the rear works. Others in the Vol line-up are expected to include Hug and Brandt, ends; Captain Johnson and Jake Johnston, tackles, the veterans Thayer and Fuller at the guard posts, and Finney and Roberts for centers.

Tennessee produced one of the strongest threats in the conference last season, and is generally expected to repeat again.

Coach Charlie Bachman, former Notre Dame star and pupil of Knute Rockne, will have a nucleus of veterans to work with at Florida. Nineteen men will report to Bachman at St. Augustine today for two weeks' training.

Outstanding among the 1929 crop of Gators are Van Sickle, all-American end; Steele, all-southern guard; Clemons and Reeves, tackles, and Clark, center. Available in the backfield will be Crabtree, all-southern quarter, and Cawthon, Captain Bethea, Sauls, Goodbread and Dorsett, backs.

TROUBLESOME BULLDOGS.

Reports eminating from Athens indicate the Georgia Bulldogs will give everybody on their schedule trouble. Harry Mehre and Frank Thomas, both of the Rockne school at Notre Dame, will guide the gridiron destinies of Georgia this fall. With only one man, Rothstein, remaining of the 1928 backfield, Thomas will be able to build a new working combination.

Coach Bernie Bierman, of Tulane, is looking forward to a successful season with the Greenies. He has a heavy line, with two of the fastest backfield men in the conference including Banker and Armstrong.

Regardless of good prospects for several conference teams, such as Tech, Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee and Florida, anything can happen before the season is over, with some of last year's tail-enders showing signs of improvement.

GRANT KEEPS STATE TITLE

nate corners of the court, running Bryan to exhaustion, to win at 6-3 and leave for the rest period with a one-set lead and with good chances for victory.

Unfortunately, Bryan did not have the same ideas.

He came back playing a smashing game and fought his way to control of his shots. It was Bryan who did the outsteadying act in the fourth and fifth sets, and it was Mooney who made the errors.

Bryan had a smooth net game as well in the two final sets, and made many impossible shots. Made them look easy, too.

Easy or not, Bryan Grant is again holder of the Georgia state crown. And, while he may not have played the game of a champion in winning Sunday, his fighting spirit was all that could be asked. And his play was by no means bad.

MIXED DOUBLES.

In the finals of the mixed doubles play the combination of Harry Bault and Etta Taylor played a steady and heady game to take the crown from Ralph Demott and Mary Bryan in another all-American match.

Gault and Miss Taylor had played but one match in reaching the final round, but they demonstrated their right to the position by sweeping to an easy victory at 6-3, 6-4.

Demott and Mary Bryan had eliminated Bill Reese, of Atlanta, and Beatrice Bryan, of Enterprise, Miss., earlier in the day in a semi-final match by scores of 6-2, 6-0.

The finals in the junior doubles play, in which Jimmy Halverstadt and Tom Wright will face Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, and Judge Beaver, of Gainesville, are scheduled for Monday morning.

BARONS WIN EASILY.

New Orleans, September 1.—Before a crowd of more than 12,000 fans the Birmingham Barons took the opening game of the crucial series with the New Orleans Pelicans here today by the one-sided score of 7 to 1. The league-leaders found the left-handed benders of Oscar Fuhr much to their liking and they sent him to the showers in the third after netting seven hits and six runs.

Nashville, Tenn., September 1.—The Nashville Volunteers kept pace with the league-leading Barons today by taking a loosely-played game from Little Rock, 9 to 5. With the aid of Traveler errors, the Rowland crew broke a 5-to-5 tie in the eighth to win. Mulcahy, Pebble pitcher, hit a home run with two on. Shaner and Rose also smacked the ball over the fence, the former hitting a long one over the left field wall.

Tampa Wins 2nd Half in Southeast

Tampa, Fla., September 1.—(AP)—A friendly shower today wiped away the last remaining doubt about Tampa winning the second half pennant in the Southeastern league race.

Rain stopped the game between the Smokers and Pensacola in the fifth inning, with the Fliers leading by 7 to 3. As only two were out in the fifth and Tampa did not get to complete its turn at bat, the game does not count in the standings.

Plans for the post-season play-off between Tampa and Montgomery, first half champion, for the Southeastern league championship have not been made yet, but arrangements are expected to be made tomorrow.

5,000 New Golfers

The golfing world, already crowded, has had its population increased by 5,000 in Seattle alone, says Joe Jefferson, pro at a municipal course. That many took up the golf game this year.

RAILWAYS LAY CROWD PLANS FOR YALE TILT

Roads To Co-operate on Movement; Georgia Announces Program.

Transportation is the biggest problem to solve with reference to plans for the University of Georgia-Yale football game to be played in Athens October 12 and every railroad running into Athens is co-operating to make rail travel the safest and most convenient.

Already several specials have been booked solid and others are being booked as rapidly as they are being made up, it was learned from railroad officials.

Officials of the Georgia railroad in conjuction with the Central of Georgia railroad will operate several special trains from Atlanta to Athens. The specials will be handled by the Central from Madison, Ga., and will be parked within 150 yards of the staduim, where passengers will detrain, eliminating any taxi or other transportation problem while in Athens. The specials will leave Atlanta between 8:30 and 9:15 o'clock and will maintain a 2½-hour schedule.

Following is a letter from Joe P. Billups, telling of the service to be offered by the Georgia road in conjunction with the Central of Georgia:

"The transportation problem of handling the thousands of football fans from Atlanta, and other points in this territory, to Athens, on October 12, for the Georgia-Yale game, is a huge undertaking.

"It is not a question of competition between the rail carriers in the handling of this traffic but is a question of all lines co-operating, to the fullest extent, with the University of Georgia Athletic Association in providing adequate train service from Atlanta to satisfactorily handle the crowds.

"There probably hasn't been a movement, from Atlanta, within the past 25 years, that has required as many special trains as this movement will and it will be the purpose and desire of the railroads to provide the best accommodations possible for this occasion.

"It has been pointed out that from a standpoint of safety and convenience train service will be preferrable, account of the congested highways, road hazards, unsatisfactory road conditions, reckless drivers and limited parking facilities for automobiles in Athens.

"The Georgia railroad, in conjunction with the Central of Georgia railway, will operate several special trains from Atlanta to Athens, leaving Atlanta between 8:30 a. m. and 9:15 a. m., central time. A schedule of 2 hours and 30 minutes will be maintained between Atlanta and Athens, in each direction. Several of these special trains will be composed of all Pullman cars for seat accommodation, while other will be solid coach equipment.

"These special trains will be handled by the Central of Georgia railway from Madison, Ga., to Athens, and will be parked at Athens within 150 yards of the stadium, where passengers will detrain, which will, of course, eliminate any taxicab or other transportation problems.

"Athens is expecting 40,000 persons for this game, and the feeding of these visitors is one of her largest problems. With this in mind, the Georgia railroad has arranged with Harold Hagan, president of the Pig 'n Whistle Company, of Atlanta, to provide refreshments on every one of the special trains both going and returning. The usual high-class service of the Pig 'n Whistle Company, with all kinds of delicious sandwiches and cold drings, such as served in their stands, at the same popular prices as prevail in Atlanta, will be had on these trains.

"The sale of round-trip railroad and Pullman tickets, as well as coach tickets, will begin September 3, at which time choice football tickets will be sold to our patrons, at our joint city ticket office, 67 Luckie street, N. E., Piedmont Hotel building.

"A special train with University of Georgia alumni and Georgia Tech alumni will leave the Union station at 9 a. m., Saturday, October 12, arriving Athens at 11:30 a. m., central time. The game will be called at 2 p. m., eastern time.

"The hundreds of members of both the Georgia and the Tech Alumni associations and others who have booked reservation on our trains are respectfully requested to call for their tickets as early as possible.

"The Georgia railroad and the Central of Georgia railway, on account of the location in Athens, are in position to give the very best of service, and our service has been officially indorsed by Grover Middlebrooks, president Atlanta Alumni Association, University of Georgia, and George T. Marchmont, president National Alumni Association of Georgia Tech, the announcement of which was carried in your column several weeks ago.

"Very truly yours,
"JOE P. BILLUPS,
"General Passenger Agent."

Tolley, British Ace, Is Threat to Jones

Long-Driving Englishman Heads Foreign Band Attempting To Tumble Bob From Thrown.

By Frank H. King,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

New York, September 1.—Cyril J. H. Tolley, Britain's leading amateur linksman and Bobby Jones' most formidable foreign challenger in the amateur golf championship, is hitting the ball far and true out in the west where the Pacific pounds Pebble Beach. If by any chance the title should go abroad this week, Tolley is likely to take it; but no "furriner" has won since Harold Hilton in 1911.

And nobody, by the way, ever heard a golfer called a linksman in Tolley's old home country. But to annex the American title to his own and thus become the first doubly-crowned amateur champion since Hilton won both the British and American titles in 1911, Tolley would submit to almost any number of what they call Americanisms on the other Atlantic shore.

Tolley leads the gallant little band of British golfers that has joined the American horde trying to overthrow the Jones dynasty. With him is E. F. Storey, Walker cup player; Lord Charles Hope, scion of a famous golfing family, and young T. A. Bourn, 1928 French champion, and son of a famous golfing mother. Tolley is a serious contender at Pebble Beach, Storey and Hope have come over for the fun of the play, Bourn for the experience.

From the west comes word that the long-driving Tolley is crashing the ball tremendous distances with as much if not more than usual accuracy. Tolley outdrove Jones consistently the other day in their practice round together and he laid his ball on the green at one particular long-distance hole with two great shots, a feat they say rarely is ever accomplished.

But outdriving Bobby Jones isn't anything new for Tolley. He did it in the Walker cup singles at St. Andrews in 1927 when last they met seriously, and was overwhelmed 12 and 11 for his impudence.

Tolley is a better golfer now. As a medal player he is particularly improved. This should enable him to avoid a third failure to qualify for the American title chase. At match play he is about the same. On his game, unbeatable; off it, easy prey for most anybody.

The big Englishman would be the last to boast of his chances this week. "The American championship is a hard one to win," he says. But so is the British. Leave it to Bobby Jones to say whether the British title tournament with its six or eight tricky, consecutive 18-hole matches topped off by a 36-hole final test is easier than the American system.

JONES PLAYING CAREFUL GOLF, SAYS VON ELM

Former Amateur Champ Believes Bob Is Out for Records.

By George Von Elm,
National Amateur Champion 1926.
(Copyright, 1929, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Pebble Beach, Calif, September 1.—Bobby Jones, popular Atlanta golfing wizard, is in wonderful form to defend his national amateur championship in the annual United States Golf Association classic scheduled to get under way here tomorrow.

Bobby is playing carefully and making few mistakes and he knows he will have to continue clipping par to turn back the most brilliant amateur golf field in the history of the national pastime.

Bobby has the happy faculty of being able to look any golf course in the face and emerge the victor. Yesterday he dropped three strokes to par on his first three holes, then picked up seven birdies to establish a new and unthought of course record of 67. This is new golf history.

Today Bobby relaxed, which is a sure sign that he is out to try and break all known records by again annexing the much-sought amateur crown.

EDGE ON FIELD.

Bobby has an edge on the field, but don't forget that the field is the most brilliant ever and anything can happen, especially with George Voigt, Phillips Finlay, Cyril Tolley and the balance of the stellar 31 contestants who will win match-play ratings in the qualifying play which starts tomorrow.

George Voigt is going to be one dangerous golfer in the championship and if Jess Sweetser continues to hit the back of the cup there will be some early round upsets in the current event.

Anything can happen in an 18-hole match. I found that out last year and Bobby had two narrow escapes, so you can reckon on those first two matches being the most hard fought of the week. In a 36-hole match you have a chance to rectify mistakes, but slips are costly over the shorter route.

Without exception the entrants have become enthusiastic over the Pebble Beach layout, but it is a tough and pleasing test and one that is very just—the kind of course that rewards accuracy and boldness and oftentimes the two do not go together.

FIRST CASUALTY.

The first casualty of the tournament was reported today. Howard Hughes, slender and youthful Hollywood millionaire, who learned to play championship golf while writing several startling chapters in cinema history, suffered a fractured elbow here today and was forced to withdraw. Hughes was one of the ranking California hopes in the clash starting tomorrow.

Finlay, the Harvard youngster, may prove the outstanding figure in this championship. I have been much impressed with the youth's game. He is an exceptionally long hitter and is great with his irons. He has already won his right to a national rating and he will have a lot of supporters rooting for his tomorrow.

Every golf fan in the world knows that 148 players will start a battle tomorrow for match play ratings in the championship proper and next Wednesday the select group will go into intensive action.

Scanties Fail To Daunt Cops In New Orleans

New Orleans, La., September 1.—(United News.)—Pajamas worn in public places might cause excitement in New York or Oklahoma, but they would not get a buzz out of New Orleans.

When Vieux Carre artists and writers made a feeble attempt at a summer costume ball—the prize costume of the affair registered only one or two lifted eyebrows when the winner walked into Childs' restaurant.

Clad only in a square piece of cloth, folded once, and fastened with a huge safety pin, a young man in his thirties strolled in for a bit of food during the evening.

An unsophisticated and sleepy waitress registered a weak smile. Diners lifted their eyebrows and continued eating shrimps.

Apparently looking for support, the almost unclad one returned to the street, where several companions were unloading from a motor car.

He spied a policeman.

"See me," he asked. "I am a 6-month-old baby."

"Yeh," said the big man in blue with a big silver badge. "What of it?"

"Ah," said the almost unclad one, "and here is my little baby sister."

"Huh!" the big man in blue gasped, "er-er, is she dressed like you?"

His fears were unwarranted, although "little sister" would have been an eye opener for Earl Carroll's revue. Clad in a pair of rompers of sheer silk, little sister skipped up for little brother.

"Let's eat," she said. And then to the policeman, "you see he must have his bottle every hour."

"Yeh," said the cop, as he resumed his position against the lamp post.

RUSSIAN YOUTHS, WILD AS ANIMALS, KILL 2 TEACHERS

Moscow, U. S. S. R., September 1. (AP)—One of the most serious problems the soviet government has faced, the care of the thousands of homeless waifs, most of whom have been taken during the past year from the city streets and placed in camps and schools for defectives, has again come to the forefront of public attention through the murder of two teachers.

The teachers attended a meeting at a school just outside of Moscow. On their way to the railway station they were attacked by a gang of youthful delinquents who beat them, bound and gagged them and placed them on the railroad tracks.

One teacher was run over by the train and killed but the other crawled down from the railway embankment. He was found and taken to a nearby hospital where he lived long enough to tell the story of the assault.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

FLIP AND JIMMY MEET AGAIN.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

His knowledge he has truly earned
Who through experience has learned.
—Old Mother Nature.

For a while after his experience with Jimmy Skunk, when Jimmy had taught him very great respect, Flop was a very subdued little dog. He was not nearly as inquisitive as he had been. When he had first been allowed back to the house he had worn a somewhat shamed look. Bowser the Hound would look at him and grin slyly, the Flip knew just what that grin meant. But Flip had nothing to say. He remembered that Bowser had warned him to keep away from Jimmy Skunk, and had he heeded Bowser's warning, nothing like this would have happened.

Always as he went about Flip had an eye open for Jimmy Skunk. He had a feeling that sooner or later he and Jimmy would meet again. "I want to see him first," Flip would say to himself. "Yes, sir, I want to see him first. It would be dreadful to run into him suddenly. He might not understand that I have no intention of hurting him."

But the days passed with no sign of Jimmy Skunk, and gradually Flip ceased to watch for him. A little dog's memory is not too long and when you happen to be a little dog in a new and strange place, there are so many things to see and so many things to learn that unpleasant memories are soon crowded out. It was just so with Flip. He had become his old lively self, interested in everything.

And then one day as he raced around a corner of the barn he came face to face with Jimmy Skunk. In fact, he almost bumped into him. It was as much of a surprise to Jimmy as it was to Flip. Flip put the brakes on in a hurry. That is to say, he did his best to stop. Jimmy Skunk never hurries. It is never necessary for him to put the brakes on. But he did stop. And then that big tail of his began to lift.

Flip's eyes looked as if they would jump out of his head. He turned like a flash. If his stub of a tail had only been a long tail, it would have been between his legs. His eyes were rolled back as he shot away and around the corner of that barn again. He was a picture of fright.

Now it happened that Bowser the Hound was sedately following Flip, although Flip didn't know it. So when Flip whirled around the corner of the barn he ran right into Bowser.

"Good morning, Jimmy," said he respectfully

In fact, he hit Bowser so hard that he knocked him over. Bowser really didn't know what it was all about. He snarled. Flip, too scared to know who it was he had run into, ki-yied in sheer fright, scrambled to his feet and headed for Farmer Brown's house.

Bowser got to his feet. "Well," said he, "I wonder what has happened to Flip. He acts as if he had lost his wits from fright."

Just then Bowser saw a head appear around the corner of the barn. Then Bowser grinned. That head was the head of Jimmy Skunk. Jimmy looked merely mildly interested. Bowser took a few steps to one side. "Good morning, Jimmy," said he respectfully. "What have you been doing to my friend Flip?"

"Who is Flip?" inquired Jimmy.

"That little black and white dog you must have met a moment ago," replied Bowser.

Jimmy grinned. "I didn't do anything," he said. "I didn't have time. But I wouldn't have anyway, unless he had been as impudent as he was the first time I met him."

Albany, Ga., September 1.—(Special.)—Albany will be entered in the health conservation contest sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, according to announcement made here today by Miss Hattie Hardy, secretary of the Albany Chamber of Commerce.

This contest will be similar to the fire prevention contest in which Albany had gained national distinction for several years past, winning two grand trophies and the trophy in cities of its size twice.

Because of the present good health record enjoyed by Albany, and because of the intensive malaria control campaign being carried on by county, state and federal authorities, this city is expected to make a good showing in the health conservation contest. The city manager and county health commissioner will be asked to co-operate in every way in this contest.

BLUE RIBBON FICTION

By ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Douglas Dorling, a young British peer, is sent to prison on the perjured testimony of Cora Sefton, an unscrupulous woman in love with him. In revenge, because he snubbed her advances, she swears she saw him kill a policeman during a night club raid.

Dorling is a famous aviator, but to keep the knowledge from his mother and spare her worry, he has been using the assumed name of Douglas Harris; and as Douglas Harris he is tried and convicted.

While the convicts are at work in a quarry Douglas finds a tobacco tin containing an unsigned note, telling him he will be rescued the next day. He follows directions and escapes to a furniture van.

At the exact moment the governor of the prison arrives at the gates with a distinguished visitor, Jabez Malloran, connoisseur of the arts, and he directs the pursuit of Convict 271, confidently predicting the fugitive will be caught within five minutes. He proves to be wrong.

Inside the van, Doug is dressed in new clothes; then finds himself being dropped into a moving touring car. The chauffeur tells him his new name is Douglas Sefton and they are going to the Gunter hotel—almost next door to the prison—as the place where he is least likely to be sought.

To his amazement Cora Sefton greets him at the hotel. She has registered as his wife, and she takes him to "their" suite of rooms. Doug collapses from shock and strain, and Cora drugs him.

Cecily Warren, the girl Douglas loves, is also staying at the Gunter hotel, and is stunned when she sees Dorling embraced by Cora. She jumps to the conclusion that he has married secretly, and leaves at once for London, disillusioned and heartbroken.

INSTALLMENT VII.
PLAYING UP

Some four hours later Dorling awoke with the consciousness that he was lying on a spring bed. Within a few seconds something approaching full memory returned. He remembered clinging to the furniture van, acting more on impulse than on reason—remembered that events had thereupon been taken out of his hands and that he had had a nerve storm.

Some one was moving about in the room. A woman. Cora Sefton. So then, the woman whose perjury had put him in prison and had come near to shattering his manhood was now, apparently organizing his escape. For all he knew, those men in the van might have been working at her command. And in the meantime he and she were sharing a private suite and the management believed them to be husband and wife. "Mr. Sefton." That was a problem he would probe later. He was full of caution now. He pretended to be asleep, and furtively watched her.

There were a couple of portmanteaux and a dressing case lying open on the floor. Cora was unpacking them, moving slowly and quietly so as not to disturb him. She was laying out an evening suit. He yawned elaborately and sat up.

"Hullo!"

"Hullo!" she echoed and then, anxiously, "How do you feel now?"

"In the pink, thanks—and bursting with questions?"

"Keep them until after dinner," she said, quickly. "You've got about three-quarters of an hour. This door gives on to the bathroom."

"Thanks, immensely! If you don't mind clearing out, I'll get busy."

"Splendid!" she exclaimed. "You sound perfectly normal."

"I am." As she moved towards the door he added. "By the way; why are you risking going to prison yourself in order to get me out of it?"

"O!" It was as if the question embarrassed her—but he knew better. Then, in that low, musical voice that had proved too much for many a man's susceptibilities, "Won't you believe, Douglas, that I have a conscience?"

"No, of course, I won't!" he answered roughly. "However, as you say, we can go into all that afterwards. Me for a bath."

In his bath he tried half a dozen different theories to explain the astounding fact of his presence in the Gunter hotel—and then dropped it.

"No good going around in circles like a puppy chasing its tail!" he warned himself. "Take things as they come, my lad, and watch points!"

His old courage that prison could not wholly break was coming back to him. Already the craven spirit of dread was passing from him, and his pulses began to tingle at thought of the adventure that lay ahead of him.

All went well until he came to his tie. In those months his fingers had grown clumsy. At the first attempt he could not tie a bow at all. Then the bow sagged ludicrously.

"O, God, I can't do it!" he muttered, in unreasoning panic—then checked himself.

"Keep your nerve, you ass!" he warned himself, rested a moment, then tried again.

The result this time was clumsy but not, as he thought, impossible.

He put on the dinner jacket, marveling that it should fit him so exactly, and passed through the communicating door into the sitting room.

Cora was waiting for him with a friendly smile. He looked her up and down with complete detachment. Even at that moment he could forget his adventure in an impersonal admiration of her beauty. If she could never stir his pulse, she could win the admiration of his eye. There was a quiet exquisiteness in her dark dress above which white shoulders glistened. Black hair and wide set black eyes would have given her distinction, even without the exquisite molding of the features.

"O, my dear, your tie!" She fluttered towards him, and pulled the end of his tie. "You'll have to sit down—I can't reach."

He sat down. While her neat fingers tied the bow and patted it into place, while the faint, subtle perfume of her swept over him, passionate hatred of her welled up anew.

"Now you look more presentable! . . . Shall we go down?"

"Ready when you are!" he answered, and opened the door for her.

He followed her down the staircase. In the lounge hall two or three parties were sitting over their cocktails. He kept his eyes fixed on the nape of her neck, until they stopped by their table in the middle of the room. He let Cora give orders to the waiter. The less he fussed over her, he reasoned, the more married they would appear. Married to Cora! He shivered. In their sitting room after dinner he would have it out with her and find out just how he stood.

Behind him a party, consisting mainly of young people, was taking its place.

"You want to take that with a pinch of salt!" a mellow voice gave back. "All that happened was that they stopped me at Two Bridges and wanted to look in the dickey. They're doing it to everybody."

"Will they catch him, daddy? I do hope they don't. He must be a terrific sport."

"Hm! Sentimentalism, my dear. There's not much of a sporting spirit about fellows like that—or they wouldn't be there. I had a chat with one of the warders—a decent fellow who had served in my old battalion. He told me the man couldn't possibly get off the moor. As soon as he's hungry, he will surrender."

"Douglas," said Cora, "have some more chicken."

In that moment Dorling came perilously near to forgetting his hatred of her and of positively liking her. Of the two, he realized, she was the more reasonable. It was foolish of him to sulk. She might be the most evil woman in the world, but she was a good companion in a risky adventure.

"That's great!" he laughed. "But I don't want any more chicken. It's too hot in here to eat much."

She nodded and then, as the waiter appeared at her elbow, "We'll have coffee on the terrace now."

On the terrace, within 30 yards of the cordon of police and warders. He was following her through the hall again. This time he caught sight of himself in a long mirror. The patrols might be stopping every man with whiskers and a mustache—every man in a mackintosh—but no watchful eye would rest for a second on a clean shaven young man in conventional evening dress—looking exactly like innumerable young officers on leave, undergraduates, and so on, who throng Dartmoor in the summer.

"We are the first—we can have the corner table," said Cora, lightly, as they gained the terrace. She led him to the far corner—the corner nearest the cross roads. There was a patch of roadway about 30 feet square marked with a white line indicating a parking place for cars. And then the patrol. She motioned him to sit so that he faced the patrol directly.

"Profiles are always dangerous," she said in an undertone.

He nodded indifferently, while inwardly he was impressed with her cleverness at the game.

The waiter brought coffee.

Business as Usual

"A population of 500,000 by 1932" is Atlanta's slogan. Let's all pull together for a Greater Atlanta.

The Constitution's Weekly Business Review

EDITED BY M. D. GLEASON

There is hardly a need or a want that cannot be filled in Atlanta's stores and factories.

Atlanta Aggregate Co. Mixes Uniform Concrete

It is a well known fact that upon the plastic material entering into any large masonery job rests the life of the job. If poor or not properly mixed cement or mortar is used the work soon crumbles and must be done over, while with good plastic material, mixed right, of uniform strength, the building, road, bridge or foundation lasts for ages.

If the careful business man who leaves nothing to guess work in his own business, and is planning additions or repairs to his buildings were to visit the Atlanta Aggregate Company's large plant at 721 Angier Avenue, N. E., he would see in operation one of the south's largest and most complete concrete mixing plants. There every yard of concrete is mixed according to the specifications of the architect, building contractor, or building owner. If one yard or ten thousand yards of a specified mix is ordered every yard will contain the same amount of cement, sand, gravel or slag and water.

Nothing is left to chance or guess work. The right amount of sand is let down by gravity from the large overhead bins and weighed, and the same is done with the gravel or slag and cement. The right amount of water is measured, and then again the sand, cement or gravel is let down another fifteen feet through shutes and hoisted by a big Smith concrete scoop into the mixer and the water turned in and the whole mixed in the revolving drum just the required time. Here again nothing is left to guessing, for each batch is mixed just the same time set for each particular mix. This means that if an architect or structural engineer specifies concrete of certain strength to carry certain weights for one part of a building and concrete to carry lighter or heavier weights elsewhere in the same building, the proportions of the materials he specifies and the mixing time of each batch will be uniform.

The method of mixing concrete as done by the Atlanta Aggregate Company presents many advantages to the building owner, the architect, the structural engineer, the contractor and the neighborhood and city wherein the concrete job was done. To the owner it means a strong, permanent building that will last for ages; to the architect, a lasting monument of design and ability, and to the contractor a creation that will stand as a silent testimonial of ability, and the best recommendation for future contracts. To the neighborhood or city where a building is being erected it means that half of a busy street need not be taken up by a large, unsightly contractor's supply house and traffic impeded for the best part of a year.

In addition to the advantages of having concrete of uniform strength on any particular job the contractor saves money on every yard of ready-mixed concrete he buys.

The Atlanta Aggregate begins with the advantage that they have immense sand and gravel deposits and are trainload buyers of slag and cement. When any number of cars up to 28 roll into Atlanta for them they are sent around the belt line of the Southern railroad and run on their sidetrack just back of the Sears-Roebuck main plant on Ponce de Leon avenue. As their sidetrack consists of a long trestle some fifty or sixty feet above the street level of Angier avenue each car is placed over the right bin and the material is let down by gravity. Then, when needed, it is let down to the weighing scales, and from there to the mixer and rom the mixer to the trucks, all by gravity, without a pound being shoveled by hand.

PLENTY OF MONEY FOR WALL STREET

BY R. L. BARNUM.

New York, September 1.—It is now an old story that the federal reserve hast lost control of the money market because 94 per cent of the requirements of the stock market are being financed with call money against 70 per cent in other days, with 55 per cent of the total of $6,000,000,000 brokers' loans for this federal reserve district alone furnished by "others," meaning individuals and corporations over which the federal reserve has no control.

It is being realized now, more every day, that investment trusts raising enormous amounts of money daily through the sale of their stock to the eager public are a powerful factor in the call money market as well as in the stock market.

It was learned this week that at least two large investment trusts are now withdrawing funds from the call money market to purchase stocks. Officials of these trusts explained in talks with friends that the call money market is now not only less attractive than it has been, but that the stock market offered opportunities to make a larger profit in one day than could be made in a year by employing funds in the call money market, adding that they were prepared to switch to European securities when our own domestic stocks get too high.

There was evidence this week that individuals as well as investment trusts were switching from industrials to rails. There are two good reasons for this.

New High Record.

One reason is found by analyzing the make-up of the new high price for all time just made at 300.14 in the average price of 50 representative stocks, half rails and half industrials. It was not many years ago that stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange selling as high as $300 a share could be counted on one hand with some fingers to spare. Today, the average price of $300 for 50 stocks is accepted by most traders in the stock market as a mere matter of fact reflection of investment values; that is that an average price of $300 a share for these 50 stocks is not too high when the earnings of the companies issuing the shares are considered.

It is a matter of common knowledge that on the average unregulated industrial companies are earning more per share, and ever since 1914 have earned more per share than government-regulated railroads. However, the managers of some investment trusts and some individuals are now switching from industrial to railroad shares because it is believed that the difference between the earning power of unregulated industrial companies and regulated railroads has been over-discounted in the case of industrial stocks and under-discounted in the case of railway shares. This decision is based on the fact that the average price of $300 for 50 representative stocks is made up of 447.18 for the 25 industrials and only 154.11 for the 25 rails.

Advance Further.

Moreover, it is realized that the upward price movement to the new high of 300 just established started in June, eight years ago, at 58 with the 25 industrials in the meantime advancing from 66 to 447 while the rails were only advancing from 47 to 154.

Investment trust and individuals switching from industrials to rails feel that the increasing earnings of the railroads are not generally appreciated. The earnings of the railroads now coming to hand for July and the seven months of the year is the other good reason to explain why railroad stocks are now being favored more than industrials by some investors and speculators.

Railroads to report July earnings so far show an increase of 8.5 per cent in the aggregate gross with a gain of no less than 27.8 per cent in net. For the first half of the year, the gain in gross was 6 per cent and in net 21 per cent.

Gross earnings of the railroads for the last six months of the year are always better than for the first half. The last six months includes crop moving and the exchange of crops for goods. For the first half of 1928, for example, net earnings footed up $220,000,000. For the last six months, the figures were $722,000,000. With gross this year reflecting the largest volume of general trade in peace times, more should be saved from gross for net.

Earnings Nearly Lost.

During and after the war, when the railroads were being operated by the government as one system with the government paying a guaranteed rental, the operating ratio of the railroads went so high that net earnings were nearly wiped out. Government control continued up to 1920. That year the railroads as a whole earned gross a high record of $6,178,000,000. But the government paying guaranteed rental to each road, there was no incentive to cut down expenses and as a result, the operating ratio that year, the percentage of gross required to pay operating expenses, was 94.3. Out of the high record of $6,178,000,000 gross, only a bare $17,226,000 remained for net.

Immediately after the railroads were returned to their owners, the operating ratio began to drop. For 1921 it was 82.7 per cent of gross; for 1922 it was 79.4 per cent; for 1923 it was 77.8 per cent; for 1924 it was 76.13 per cent; for 1925 it was 74.10 per cent; for 1926 it was 73.15 per cent. The next year, 1927, saw an increase to 74.5 per cent. Last year, however, 1928, the operating ratio was down to the lowest since pre-war days. For the first half of this year the operating ratio was 73 per cent of gross but for the whole year it is likely to be below 1928. Since the St. Louis and O'Fallon railroad test case decision was handed down by the supreme court in May, favoring the railroads, the railroads have made further decided progress in reducing the operating ratio and hence in saving more gross for net. This year it is almost certain that a high record will be made by the railroads in both gross and net earnings.

W. C. Caye and Co. Leaders In Machinery Equipment

"When we entered the machinery equipment business some years ago," says W. C. Caye, general manager of W. C. Caye & Company, of 160 Walker street, "We had the thought, gained in our 17 or 18 years' experience as structural engineers, that if we could give the contractors of Georgia assurance of the best in equipment, service, and business dealings, we would build a steady progressive business. We are pleased to note our equipment is being well placed throughout the state and our services appreciated.

"The improvement in contractors' equipment is truly remarkable in the last few years," continued Mr. Caye. "Old machines have been improved and new ones invented that do more or much heavier work than we would have thought possible less than a decade ago."

"Take our giant Koehring steam shovel. Here was a wonderful machine that we thought could not be improved upon. Then the engineering department at the factory brought out an improvement in the boom, by placing a heavy shock absorber where the boom joins to the platform of the steam shovel. The advantage of this shock absorber is that a Koehring shovel can go into the roughest places, rock cuts or quarries, and load large rocks without straining or damaging the equipment, for if the obstacle is heavy and jars or twists the boom it does not directly throw a heavy impact on the machinery—the shock absorber at the foot of the boom taking the shock. The boom can be instantly raised or lowered without crowding the cables. This also means that a heavy duty Koehring shovel with this shock absorber will last many years longer than one not so equipped.

"We have long been advocates of the mechanical handling of large quantities of building materials and fuels. We handle the celebrated George Haiss Manufacturing Company's handling equipment, and are prepared to furnish portable power sand screens, conveyor buckets, power drive chains, clam shell buckets, car unloaders, portable belt conveyors, and wire mesh revolving coal screens. This last named piece of equipment is a great thing for the coal merchant as it screens and assorts into various sizes the coal that collects under the wagon chutes or around yards with a ground storage and makes each size saleable for its own particular uses.

"The steel derrick is a great labor-saving device that picks up heavy weights and quickly transfers them through to where needed. We carry the Insley line that has been developed to handle with the least effort all articles within range of derrick handling. We carry as well all of the other Insley products, including hand or cable carts for conveying any kind of materials, both on the ground or atop the construction work on a new building or mining project.

"We especially invite correspondence from anyone interested in any building project," concluded Mr. Caye, "and where we are advised about the work to be done, we can be very helpful in pointing out where some of our latest improved equipment may do a big job quickly with the least construction costs."

Atlanta Rabbit Breeders To Have Exhibit at Fair

The Atlanta Rabbit and Cavy Club has completed arrangements with the Southeastern Fair Association to stage the greatest rabbit and guinea pig show ever held in the southern states at the fair this fall.

The Atlanta club is a member of the Georgia-Florida Club, as well as of the American Association of Rabbit Breeders. The membership is composed of some of the most expert rabbit men in the nation and they have started early to prepare for a show that will be worth coming many miles to see.

"The fair management is cooperating with the local club in the matter and will offer the largest number of money prizes that have ever been offered at any rabbit show anywhere in this country," Oscar Mills, executive secretary of the association stated. "We want to encourage the raising of rabbits and the agricultural department of the government is mailing out to all who are interested some instructive and interesting literature encouraging the raising of more rabbits in this country.

"The rabbit show, as projected by the Atlanta Rabbit and Cavy Club, will be of great educational value to all interested. We have secured some of the most competent rabbit judges in the country and nothing will be undone to make it a great success."

The Atlanta Rabbit and Cavy Club meets every second Monday night at the Ansley hotel.

Officials and members of the club are working to encourage Georgia people to raise more rabbits for their home meat use and to sell the furs. If considerable interest is manifest this year, the federal government will be asked to establish and maintain a government experiment and educational station somewhere in Georgia, similar to those now in southern California.

The president, B. N. Anderson, appointed the following as a committee to secure new members for the club—J. G. Smith, J. H. Cash, C. W. Isbell, A. J. Kaiser, A. J. Jansen, Charles Davis, Mrs. E. M. Davis, M. D. Gleason, C. J. Matson, E. J. Herman, Mrs. A. J. Kaiser, L. Hartley and D. B. Johnson.

DEMAND FOR WASTE MATERIALS STRONG, SAYS J. H. RODBELL

The demand for waste material is heavy at this time, says J. H. Rodbell, president of the Capital Hide and Metal Company, of 405-407 Peters street.

"We are in the market for all kinds of metals in lots from a hundred-pound to carload," says Mr. Rodwell. "And we will buy all the hides, beeswax and tallow offered, paying cash and unusually good prices for the same.

"Every now and then some one brings several hundred pounds of miscellaneous waste material he tells us he gathered around his place of business, home or farm, and he is agreeably surprised at the nice sum we pay.

"The thought has often occurred to me," continued Mr. Rodbell, "that if many home owners, business men, garage repair men or farmers who complain of being short of money, would gather up all the old metals and rubber around their places, many of them would have enough to pay a month's rent or other pressing bills.

"While our place of business is well known to most all Atlanta people, we having been on Peters street for 18 years, we extend a special invitation to all out-of-town people who have any rubber or old or broken metals around their places, to bring them in the next time they come to Atlanta. They will be more than pleased at the prices we can give them for these commodities.

"Our invitation extends to the ladies and children, as well as the men. Our receiving department opens right on the sidewalk. Business transaction with us is the same as selling eggs or butter to the grocer."

PIG IRON

The pig iron output for the first seven months of the year amounted to 25,420,048 tons as compared to 21,583,174 tons in the same period of 1928. This figure for the first seven months of the year is so far in excess of any comparable period that a new high output record may be regarded as a certainty in pig iron production. The year 1923 recorded the highest amount of pig iron produced in any one year. Production in that year amounted to 40,025,850 tons to equal which record only 14,605,802 tons must be produced in the remaining five months of 1929. Blast furnaces averaged 119,544 tons daily in the first seven months of 1929 and to equal the 1923 record must only average approximately 95,000 tons during the next five months. This figure seems ridiculously low as the current situation appears at this time.

However, for the first time since November, 1928, the number of active blast furnaces in use at the end of the month declined. At the end of July there were 217 furnaces in blast as compared with 220 at the end of June. The total production of pig iron during July represented approximately 88.4 per cent of the total capacity available compared with 89.8 per cent in June and 73.2 per cent in July, 1928.

A careful examination of the figures on steel ingot and basic pig iron production for the first six months of 1929 indicate that slightly over 2 per cent more of the steel output was represented by pig iron instead of scrap than in 1928. To the outside observer this does not seem like any considerable change, but it means over half a million tons of scrap in the first half of the year. When about 24,250,000 tons of basic open hearth steel ingots were produced in the half year and 12,985,000 tons of basic pig iron it would seem that the amount of scrap used was, roughly speaking, the difference. However, the major part of this scrap used was work scrap which takes care of itself and rises and falls as the total production of steel varies.

This greater use of pig iron in steel making was not wholly voluntary, inasmuch as scrap averaged $2 to $3 per ton higher in the first six months of this year than in 1928.

Weather Strips and Radiator Shields Seen in Cozy Homes

"We are now entering the season," says R. M. Callaway, manufacturers' representative, "when some thought must be given to making the homes more comfortable for the coming winter.

"Our local organization prides itself upon the fact that through the aid of Monarch metal weather strips we have in recent years done much to make many homes in and around Atlanta more comfortable to live in.

"These Monarch metal weather strips are so constructed that they adjust themselves to the openings or cracks between the windows and window frames and doors and door frames and no cold air can enter a room around a closed window or door.

"As a fuel-saver, authorities in this line have figured that these metal weather strips save nearly 30 per cent of a winter's fuel bill and then allow another saving in the preventing of dust from entering around the loose windows. These weather strips also prevent windows rattling."

A companion article now seen in the better homes, apartments and office buildings is the Kauffman radiator shield. They transform unsightly radiators into spots of beauty, keep the walls clean, direct heat out from the side wall into the center of the room and thus make the heat felt quicker on cold mornings. They also humidify the atmosphere and provide additional table space in seasons when the heat is not turned on.

Kauffman radiator shields and enclosures pay for themselves many times over in the saving they effect in preventing newly papered walls from getting smudged or draperies or curtains from becoming soiled soon after the steam is turned on.

These Kauffman radiator metal covers in over 40 different styles, are made to measure to fit any size or shape radiator. Shields which merely cover the back and top are efficient in preventing soiled walls and hangings as well as humidifying the air. They have a pan under the top, concealed from view, which when filled with water, effectually saturates the air with moisture.

In the Kauffman enclosures the designers had more opportunity to display their skill and have created many beautiful designs that blend with the furnishings of the most elaborate homes. While the heat radiation is in no way retarded the visitors may not know that the beautiful wall cabinet conceals the source of heat. Or the nice looking hall or bay window settee may be a Stuart type of enclosure, painted or stained to match the other furnishings.

As A. M. Callaway & Son have been serving Atlanta and nearby cities for more than 30 years with fly screens, venetian blinds, metal weather strips and radiator covers, their dealings have led many of their customers having them install from one to three splendid additions that all go to make home more comfortable.

This Callaway firm is located at 1177 West Peachtree street, N. E., with phone connection of HEmlock 0047. A personal visit or mail or phone request for information will be cheerfully answered.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF COTTON MARKET

New Orleans, September 1.—(AP)—Rather greater activity prevailed in the cotton market the past week than has been the rule of late and although during the first days of the period under review prices were somewhat erratic and fluctuated narrowly, the latter part of the week has been characterized by a steady advance and rather active buying of a speculative character.

The market reached the highest level of the present movement in Saturday's short session when December contracts sold as high as 19.50, or 90 points, equivalent to $4.50 a bale above the lowest of the preceding Saturday and the market closed at 19.43 for December compared with 18.75 on the preceding Saturday, representing a net gain for the week of 68 points or nearly $3.50 a bale.

The hesitation of the early days of the week was due to some expectations of rain in the drouth areas of the west based on a few showers at Amarillo and other points in that vicinity, but the rains failed to materialize whereas the reports of rapid deterioration of the crop became more persistent.

In addition to the drouth in the west prices were forced upward by reports of private authorities giving decidedly low condition averages for the last days of August and forecasting decreased yields compared with the government's estimate of August 8. There also developed a very brisk speculative demand for contracts which absorbed the selling by ring traders as well as hedging.

There has been a decided broadening of the demand for spots during the week and the daily sales at southern reporting markets have run well ahead of the corresponding days last year. Exports have also shown some improvement with indications that the larger movement of cotton to the ports will soon develop heavy clearance of cargoes to foreign ports.

The following shows the high, low and closing sales in the New Orleans futures during the past week compared with a year ago:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Last Year.

MEMORIAL RITES HELD FOR DR. WRAY, ELBERTON PASTOR

Elberton, Ga., September 1.—(Special.)—The First Baptist church held here today memorial service for the late pastor, Dr. W. A. Wray, who died recently at Daytona Beach, Fal., where he had just gone on his annual vacation. The services were in charge of Z. W. Copeland, superintendent of the Sunday scholo.

Dr. D. D. Nicholson, of Athens, was the principal speaker, but short talks were made by Rev. Fred Glisson, of the First Methodist church; Rev. Hal Boswell, of the Presbyterian church; Peter V. Rice, for the Baptist denomination and Z. B. Rogers for the city at large.

Mrs. W. T. Thornton, musical director, presented a musical program, interspersed with favorite songs of the deceased pastor. Dr. Wray had served the church seven years almost to a day, during which time he was active in civic as well as religious affairs of the community.

DENTIST, ROBBERY SUSPECT, REMOVED FROM HOSPITAL

Thomasville, Ga., September 1.—(Special.)—Dr. E. J. Murphy, arrested as the man who robbed the bank at Ochlocknee, 12 miles north of Thomasville, August 27, and identified by Miss Essie Carden, assistant cashier of the bank, as the robber, has been removed from Archbold Memorial hospital here to his home in this city.

He has been at the hospital almost continuously since his arrest, and in a very precarious condition. Doctors decided yesterday, however, that his condition is so much improved it would be safe to move him to his home. His father, whose home is in Arcadia, La., is here with him. Murphy was admitted to bond last Thursday but the amount of the bond has not been announced.

The Business Barometer

BY THEODORE H. PRICE, Editor, Commerce and Finance, New York.

The world's population is estimated at 1,849,000,000 persons. Of these 335,000,000 are classified as Christians living in western Europe, not including Russia, and 209,000,000 as Mohammedans living in what Occidentals call the Near East and the Far East.

These figures explain why Christendom that dominates Asia and Africa has always shuddered at the suggestion of a Mohammedan uprising. The possibility of such an event was freshly emphasized last week. It is to be hoped that the Arabs who seem to be taking the warpath in Palestine may soon be persuaded or compelled to return to the paths of peace. But there are many who think that the seeds of unrest have been widely sown and that they may soon spring up in India and elsewhere.

Normally a situation so serious would have caused a pause in the activity of speculation, but the American markets were unaffected by the week's developments and in Great Britain the apprehension felt over the situation in Palestine was largely offset by Philip Snowden's political triumph at The Hague and the settlement of the Lancashire cotton strike.

Best Explanation.

This is the best explanation of the apparent equipoise in prices that can be given. The published averages of stock market prices have again advanced to new highs, and considering commodity prices as a whole the net change has not been important.

A Cleveland bank has exposed the incompleteness of the stock averages by pointing out that of more than a thousand issues listed on the New York Stock Exchange 614 were actually lower in price on August 21 than on January 2, while only 388 were higher. It is likewise true that almost half of the various groups of stocks classified according to industries are nearer to the year's low prices than they are to its highs.

These are not the characteristics of a bull market as usually defined and the facts thus presented are somewhat sobering in their implications. But as long as most of the best known and active stocks are advancing nothing seems to disturb confidence, and the business outlook at the end of August holds promise of record trade during the autumn and holidays, although industrial production is pretty sure to lag behind the exceptionally high levels of the first half year.

At present distributive trade is fully up to expectations. Car loadings are above previous years and as the share of goods moving by truck increases each year it is clear that the total domestic trade of the country is at a height never before reached.

Slight Recession.

In industry a slight recession in steel is the principal new development. It is a delayed seasonal occurrence and is moderate in extent. Most manufacturers expect the autumn increase in buying to arrive within a few weeks, but production is still so high that the spurt, if it comes, may be less marked than usual.

In automobiles the prospect is much the same. August's output apparently exceeded July's, but stocks of cars in dealers' hands are large and it is idle to expect that further increases will be ordered in a production which is already above normal. It should not be either surprising or disappointing if the output later falls below the corresponding figures for last year.

The shoe industry admits the improvement which it has long awaited. And while many of the cotton mills are curtailing, demand for goods is better and summer shutdowns are leaving the market in shape to absorb a fuller producton after the doubts concerning the size of the crop and the price of cotton are resolved.

If the prophecies of the industrial forecasters could be summed up they would probably agree that further gains in total factory output are almost impossible, but that recessions during the remainder of the year ought to be moderate and harmless. It is also likely that the confidence with which 1930 is approached, will be in inverse ratio to the total of industrial production this fall, since even the United States is not yet ready permanently to sustain an activity as great as this year's to date.

Market Nervous.

The grain markets have been somewhat nervous but they have not yielded much and cotton has shown impressive strength on the drouth reported in Texas and weevil damage in some other parts of the south. Most wheat men believe that if the farmers will only hold they will soon obtain better prices, and if the government cotton estimate due September 9 confirms some of the bullish crop reports spinners are likely to abandon thier aloofness. But they are traditionally doubting Thomases who wait for the government stamp of approval on crop scares.

Sugar reassured those who think it is cheap enough by the ease with which the largest deliveries ever made on exchange contracts were absorbed last week, but the supply to come is ample and the price is likely to advance but slowly unless a crop catastrophe occurs somewhere.

Silk is easy under the pressure of an abundant supply in Japan, and rubber is held down by the unexpected slowness with which the statistical position improves despite a record-breaking consumption this year. In the other commodities changes have not been important.

Loans Increase.

Brokers' loans in New York as reported by the Federal Reserve board made another sensatonal gain of $132,000,000 last week, following an equal increase the previous week. Even some of the most ardent preachers of the "new era" admit that the pace is too speedy for comfort.

That brokers' loans can increase so rapidly at a time when commercial loans are likewise expanding each week demonstrates the elasticity of our credit system. With the resources of the Federal Reserve system still untouched the breaking point is not at hand, but it is idle to anticipate any easing of the strain as long as the reserve banks must be called on. They will assume the negative responsibility of seeing that commercial rates go no higher, but that is all that the well-informed look for.

Financial writers continue to stress the high rates for call money as the most important feature of the situation. But it seems to have lost its terror for speculators despite the fact that the credit now borrowed by the members of the New York Stock exchange alone amounts to more than $7,000,000,000 and must cost those who carrying stocks an average of fully 8 per cent per annum or $560,000,000 a year. To this must be added the expense of maintaning and operating the machinery of American speculation, which is estimated at a minimum of $2,000,000 a day or $600,000,000 for a year of 300 working days. This is a total of at least $1,100,000,000 a year that is being paid by speculators for the luxury of hope and it may be that some of those who are now enjoyng this luxury will conclude that it is costing too much.

This, and the possibility that the uprising in Palestine may come to involve a larger area are the only features which appeared to emphasize the need of caution and our commerce and industry seem to be n such a strong position that they are not likely to be much affected by anything less than a cataclysm on the stock exchange.

Northwestern Bank Merger Surprises New York

BY JOHN F. SINCLAIR.

(Copyright, 1929, by The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

New York, September 1—New York was surprised last week when it woke up one morning and found that the northwest had built up almost overnight a bank merger which included 37 banks in Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana, with combined assets of over $350,000,000. The banks were headed by the executive officers of the First National banks of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

"The most important and far-reaching bank merger which has occurred this year," one New York banker said to me. "It begins to show us where American banking is going."

In this case of the First Bank Stock Corporation of Minneapolis and St. Paul, the holding company which is to control all these banks and others which it will add later, absorbed powerful banks in scores of important cities in four different states.

If strong unit banks in four states are available, why not other banks in five, or ten, or thirty, or forty-eight states? In other words, what is more logical than a billion or a five billion dollar holding company which will absorb banks all over the nation?

For years bankers in the northwest have seen their deposits drained into central banks in the larger cities. With the development of the chain store, and other lines of national production and distribution headed largely in New York, the middle west saw that something had to be done to maintain its own financial and banking independence.

At first a loose tie-up was effected by the First National of St. Paul and Minneapolis, but it was soon seen that the movement had to go much further. The First Bank Stock Corporation is the first attempt, outside of California, to bring together the powerful economic forces of one section of the country into a banking combine.

What a merger! The copper and lead mines of Montana, the flour industry of Minneapolis, the railroads of St. Paul, the farming industry all tied together in a big community interest.

Now turn to the east, where work is proceeding on a merger of the Old Colony Trust Company and the First National Bank of Boston. Old Colony had resources of $207,000,000 with five Boston branches; First National has $403,000,000 with 12 branches in Boston, one in Buenos Aires and three in Cuba.

If this merger goes through, it will form a unit bank with assets of $610,000,000, having 22 branch offices.

Now it is well to distinguish the difference between chain banking and branch banking.

Chain banking consists of a number of independent units which have the same controlling interest. But a person doing business with a bank which belongs to a chain is doing business with that particular bank. If he places $1,000 on deposit, his deposit is protected only by the assets of that particular bank. The assets of the other banks in the chain are no security for his deposit, because each one of its banking units is individual and stands on its own financial feet.

It is quite possible for one bank in such a chain to fail while the other banks in the chain remain solvent. It does not happen often, but it is possible.

A branch bank, on the other hand, is a unit bank. When a person puts a deposit of $1,000 in a branch of this bank, all the assets in all the branches are back of the deposit. No branch could fail in itself, for it is merely one member. If one failed, all would fail.

It has been stated that of the 26,000 banks in the United States, 285 of them control 72 per cent of all the commercial deposits in the country, while the remaining number of banks control only 28 per cent.

Rudolph S. Hecht, New Orleans banker, says that already ten of our largest banks have combined deposits of $10,000,000,000.

"But good banking is really not a matter of size.

"A properly conducted small country bank can be just as safe as a large city institution with branches," says Mr. Hecht.

Still it cannot be denied that the old individualism in banking is giving way in this era to a new type of organization which ties up more experience and more financial power in the larger unit.

Craig B. Hazelwood, president of the American Bankers' Association and vice president of the First National bank of Chicago, is not yet convinced that country-wide branch banking is desirable in the United States.

"I cannot bring myself to the belief, however, that the mal-administration of a few unit bankers is sufficient reason for throwing over the banking system that unquestionably contributed a large part to the prosperity of this country and substitute in its place a system under which bank policies are set up in a book of rules without opportunity for broad judgment and business-building liberality."

Other American bankers have made similar statements in recent months. Bank mergers continue unabated. About 40 of the recent bank mergers involve total assets well in excess of $12,000,000,000—or more than one-sixth of all the banking resources of the country.

There are many unsolved problems that face the national banks. The heavy withdrawals of national banks from the federal reserve system in recent years has been the important factor in the agitation for a more liberal national banking act. More liberal state banking laws have been responsible. A movement is on now to make even more liberal the present national banking act.

Nevertheless, the trend toward the larger banking unit is unmistakable. In 1921 there were 30,812 banks in the United States. Seven years later there were 26,213. But the banking resources of the country increased during that same period from $45,000,000,000 to more than $71,000,000,000.

Today less than one per cent of the total number of banks in the United States hold about 35 per cent of the total deposits.

The American Bankers' Association has adopted vigorous resolutions three times during the past ten years, condemning the spread of branch banking "in any form." But chain, rather than branch, banking is now the order of the day.

It is of peculiar significance that this movement—which has gained such momentum during the last 12 months, while it is being watched with great interest, particularly by country banks—is causing throughout the country as a whole hardly a ripple of opposition.

How times change!

BY THE DIAL TWISTER.

Piano duets—which once formed such a fine opportunity for two people to sit close together on the same piano bench—have been revolutionized in these later days of entertainment by the provision of a personal piano for each half of the duet. Phil Ohman and Victor Arden, the pianomaniacs of the old Roxy radio gang, who are to be guest artists at 7:30 o'clock tonight of the General Motors Family Party, with Buick host, over WSB and the N. B. C. system, are largely responsible for the change.

Providing two pianos is reported to have made duetting more of an art than it ever was before. Also it is said to give each of the artists an opportunity to do his stuff without the danger of getting his hands mixed up with those of his companion—as was the case in the old days. It gives each artist a chance at the whole piano—and a chance to demonstrate how careful timing and expert manipulation of the keys may be made to do quite a number of things the front parlor duets on the old square piano never intended should be done.

The result of the Ohman and Arden innovation—the use of two pianos—made these two artists Broadway favorites in short order, and they have been featured in musical shows that swept the country.

In the General Motors Family Party, Ohman and Arden are to be assisted by an orchestra directed by Frank Black—himself a pianist and and arranger of much music for the star duettists. There will also be a vocal trio—the well-known and popular Buick Trio—to help out with vocal choruses.

* * * *

Mildred Hunt, soprano, called "the Sweetheart of the Air," by a nation of radio listeners, will be the featured artist in the program to be broadcast by Roxy and his gang through WSB and the N. B. C. system this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock.

Miss Hunt is heard in "The Triadors," an N. B. C. program broadcast over a national network, and several times each week as soloist in other important programs.

EIGHT NEGRO ORPHANS DIE IN MEMPHIS FIRE

Memphis, September 1.—(AP)—Eight negro children, the oldest 6, were burned to death here today when the Industrial Settlement House was destroyed by fire. Seventy-two children marched out to safety.

Bodies of the eight were found in the ruins after the fire was extinguished. They were trapped in an upstairs bathroom where they sought shelter from the fire of undetermined origin.

Firemen searching the ruins discovered the eight bodies. The youngest child was 2. Authorities of the home did not know how the children got to the bathroom, as it did not adjoin their sleeping quarters. It was believed they became panic-stricken and fled upstairs to the bathroom, believing it offered shelter.

Most negroes in the home are orphans.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN No. 13

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The weird, savage cries of the panther mingled with Tarzan's own blood-curdling ones. Akut had just time to leap to one side. The white ape clung tenaciously to the screaming, roaring, maddened beast. Relentlessly, Tarzan drove his knife through the glossy hide, until with a final lunge the great feline rolled over on its side and lay still.

Once again through the jungle rang the wild challenge of Tarzan's victory cry. Akut and the apes of Akut stood looking in startled wonder at the dead Sheeta and the lithe, straight figure of the man who had slain him. Tarzan was the first to speak: "Twice have I saved Akut's life. When Akut or his tribe is in danger again let them call to Tarzan—thus!"

—and the ape-man raised the hideous cry with which the tribe of Kerchak had been wont to summon its absent members in times of peril. "And," he continued, "when they hear Tarzan call to them, let them remember what he has done for Akut and come to him with great speed. Shall it be as Tarzan says?" From Akut and his tribe there rose a unanimous assent of satisfied grunts.

Presently the tribe went to feeding again as though nothing had happened. The glistening body of Lord Greystroke mingled with the brown, shaggy hides of his companions as they hunted. He noticed that Akut, with a look of friendship in his small eyes, always kept close to him. Sometimes, when Akut found a particularly tender morsel, he would hand it to Tarzan.

FUNERAL TODAY FOR MRS. WILLIAMS, FORMER ATLANTAN

Columbia, S. C., September 1.—(Special.)—Mrs. Annis Jane Williams, wife of V. L. Williams, a representative of the General Motors Acceptance Corporation here, died in a local hospital early this morning. Mrs. Williams moved to Columbia with her husband about a year ago from Charlotte, but was originally from Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held at the Locust Grove, Ga., Baptist church at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Williams is survived by her husband, her father, W. I. Parr, of Locus Grove, Ga.; three sisters, Mrs. Ida Goss, of Locust Grove; Mrs. Oscar Harden, of Atlanta; Miss Lois Parr, of Locust Grove, and two brothers, W. E. Parr, of Atlanta, and I. O. Parr, of Copper Hill, Tenn.

AIRPLANE CRASHES INTO BATHROOM, BOY IN TUB HURT

Paterson, N. J., September 1.—(AP) John Grieder, 22, and Frank Locher, 30, crashed with their plane in a side slip today, into the residence of Otto Meyer, Preakness, near Paterson, both men being seriously injured. Part of the plane went through a bathroom window, where Arnold Meyer, 10, was showered with plaster and cut and bruised.

The plane was owned by the Paterson Aviation Academy. Grieder and Locher both held pilot licenses.

LOCAL MOTORISTS FEEL FULL EFFECT OF NEW GAS TAX

With the advent of Sunday all the major operators of gasoline stations in Atlanta and throughout the state added 2 cents to their price cards. This change was in accordance with the 6-cent gasoline tax law, which went into effect at midnight Saturday. The Reed, Wofford, Gulf, Pan-American, Standard and Texas Companies all reported that their price had gone to 24c a gallon.

In some instances the 2-cent increase represented that much added profit for the oil companies, since some filled their tanks under the 4-cent law and sold under the new law at an increase. Until it becomes necessary to refill their tanks this increment will be to the station operators' benefit.

DAVID L. OATES, 2, VICTIM OF DRUG, BURIED TODAY

Funeral services for David Lamar Oates, 23-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Oates, of 674 Peeples street, who died at Grady hospital Saturday night, will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the chapel of the Harry G. Poole Company by the Rev. M. A. Cooper, pastor of the West End Baptist church.

The child died at about 9 o'clock Saturday night from the effects of a toxic drug administered as a sedative, according to hospital reports.

The parents said that the baby became restless Friday afternoon and that a doctor was summoned. He prescribed a sedative and when this was filled at a drug store the direction on the bottle read: "To be given when necessary for rest in doses of from 1-2 to 2 teaspoonsful."

Following these directions, doses were given at 6 o'clock, again at 7 and a third at 8 o'clock, the dose each time being a spoonful or slightly less. The child lapsed into a coma a short time later and never regained consciousness, the parents stated, and the doctor returned at about 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. A pulmotor was secured and child worked over for nearly two hours before being taken to the hospital. There an inhalator was used but the child died without recovering from its coma.
